

HAWAII AERIAL DERBY IS LAUNCHED

COOLIDGE MAY SUCCEED JUDGE GARY NINE PLANES LEAVE CALIFORNIA IN RACE FOR $25,000 PRIZE

REPORT PRESIDENT WILL FILL VACANCY
AS BOARD CHAIRMAN

Others Mentioned—
Former Chief To Be Buried In Wheaton

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Chairmanship of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, made vacant by the death of Judge Elbert H. Gary, may be offered to President Coolidge if the President remains firm in his determination not to be a candidate for renomination and reelection, according to a report in Wall St., today.

But in the financial district the Coolidge report was met with considerable skepticism. The best guess of the financial community was that former Governor Nathan L. Miller, general counsel of the steel corporation, would be named as Mr. Gary's successor.

James A. Farrell, president of the corporation, is also mentioned as a possible successor, along with Myron C. Taylor, Senator David A. Reed, Pierre S. DuPont, Dwight Morrow, Eugene G. Grace and George Gordon Crawford. The finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation meets this afternoon at 2:30 and it is probable that a temporary chairman will be chosen. It is unlikely that any final choice will be made until J. P. Morgan returns from Europe.

The body of Judge Gary will be shipped to Chicago this afternoon on the Twentieth Century Limited. From Chicago it will be taken to Wheaton, Ill., for funeral services and burial Thursday. Judge Gary was born in Wheaton and he had expressed the wish to be buried there. Services will be conducted in the Gary Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, gift of the deceased to the congregation.

There is much speculation concerning the size of the fortune left by the late steel master. The estimates run all the way from $10,000,000 to $45,000,000.

For the last twenty-four hours messages of condolence have been pouring in upon the Gary home, at 1130 Fifth Avenue, from all parts of the United States and Europe. Among them were messages from President Coolidge, Vice President Dawes, J. P. Morgan, Charles M. Schwab and many others.

The great chain of industrial plants, mines, and railways of the United States Steel Corporation, stretching all the way across the American continent, will be still temporarily during the funeral services.

Mrs. Gary is deeply affected by her husband's death. She refused to receive any visitors except relatives and her most intimate friends. Judge Gary died of chronic myocarditis with chronic endocarditis, or inflammation of the membranous lining of the heart, as a contributing factor.

The end came so suddenly that there was no time to summon to his bedside his two daughters, Mrs. Robert W. Campbell, wife of the chairman of the trustees of Northwestern University, and Mrs. Gertrude Sutcliffe, of Chicago. Both daughters are in the Campbell home in Evanston and will meet the train bearing their father's body. They will accompany Mrs. Gary to Wheaton. Mrs. Campbell has two children, the only grandchildren Judge Gary had. Mrs. Sutcliffe is a widow.

WHEATON, Ill., Aug. 16.—Wheaton today sorrowfully prepared to receive the funeral cortege of the town's most distinguished citizen. The body of Judge Gary will lie in state Wednesday afternoon at the Gary Memorial Church, where the remains may be viewed by hundreds of local townspeople who numbered Judge Gary as a close personal friend. The Rev. Almer Pennewell, pastor of the church, is now in Missouri on vacation, but wired that he is returning to conduct the funeral services.

It was here that Judge Gary grew to manhood, practiced law, served the town as mayor and later became county judge. Despite the high offices that required his presence in the east throughout the greater part of the last century, Judge Gary never forgot the folks back home. The town is in deepest mourning today. All business houses will be closed Thursday, the day of the funeral. Delegations of business men and officials from nearby Illinois cities will come here and attend the funeral in a body.

DISCOVER DISEASE

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Aug. 16.—The first case of infantile paralysis in Marshall County was reported today, when a six-year-old child was found to be suffering with the disease which has assumed serious proportions in neighboring Ohio cities. Steps may be taken here to enforce a precautionary quarantine to prevent spread of the disease.

MEMBERS OF FAMILY UNHURT; BLAME RADICAL SYMPATHIZERS

Lewis McHardy, Who Was In Panel Of Sacco-Vanzetti Trial, Target Of Latest Outrage—Had Been Threatened

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The East Milton home of Lewis McHardy, one of the jurors who found Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti guilty of the Braintree payroll murders in 1920, was wrecked early today by a powerful bomb. Five members of the McHardy family were thrown from their beds and were shaken up badly, but aside from a cut on the head sustained by Mrs. McHardy, none were injured.

Police are combing all nearby towns for the East Milton bombers, but no arrests have been made.

The explosion took place just a few hours before the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court assembled to hear final arguments from Sacco and Vanzetti's counsel, who are fighting for a new trial. As a result of the bomb outrage, additional guards have been placed about the court house, the state house and the state prison where the two self-admitted anarchists are held.

The McHardy family lived in a two and one-half story frame dwelling. The bomb, which had evidently been planted under a corner of the veranda, tore out the front part of the building, wrecked the veranda, demolished part of the north side, broke down all the doors and smashed all the windows. The detonation was heard for about a mile and the concussion rocked the ground like an earthquake.

In the house asleep were Mr. and Mrs. McHardy and their three children—Theodore, 23; John, 28,

FASTS FOR CATARRH
CLEVELAND, Aug. 16.—Charles Kempel, of Lakewood, today was entering upon the thirteenth day of a fast which he hopes will cure him of catarrh and other ailments. He has had nothing except orange juice and water since August 3. Recently he discontinued the orange juice diet and now takes water only. "Feeling fine," Charlie declared today.

WARNING ISSUED TO MINERS IN BELMONT COUNTY'S DISPUTE

Unions Say Warning Is Subterfuge And Attempt To Evict

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Aug. 16.—Belmont County's mine wage dispute took a new angle today when notices were posted on houses at the Webb mine of the Cambria Coal Company here, warning the miners that the property had been leased by the Monroe Coal Company, and that the latter company forbade all unemployed miners to enter or remain on mine property unless they signed the new wage agreement.

At the same time it was learned that the Florence mine of the Y and O Coal Company had been leased to the Atlantic Refining Company, Cleveland. The Atlantic Company according to the terms of the lease must mine 50,000 tons of coal each quarter, or 200,000 tons each year.

Union officers here declare the order of the Monroe Coal Company is a subterfuge and an attempt to evict them without dual process of law.

The Webb mine is the second largest in the state, and houses there now shelter about 800 persons in a hundred houses, according to observers. About twenty-five houses at the Florence mines are occupied, it is said.

HOME TOWN HONORS
JAMES O. CURWOOD
OWOSSO, Mich., Aug. 16.—Business will be suspended from 2 to 4 o'clock this afternoon during funeral services for James Oliver Curwood, author and conservationist. Many notables, including Gov. Fred W. Green are to be present.

Several writers, editors and publishers have signified their intention of attending.

VICTIM OF ROBBERY

MONTE CARLO, Aug. 16.—Ethel Garden, sister of Mary Garden, grand opera prima donna, reported to the police today that a handbag containing money and jewelry to the value of $2,500 was stolen from her bath house on the beach here, when she was in swimming.

GERMAN PILOT FORCED TO DESCEND AFTER START

Johann Ristic, inset, German pilot who started off from Dessau, Germany, for the United States in the airplane Europa with its sister ship Bremen, and who was forced to descend at Bremen, is one of the most famous aviators in the world. Picture above is of the all-metal Junkers seaplane in which he made a world's record flying 194.24 miles an hour with a load of 2,200 pounds.

GERMAN FLYERS WILL TRY AGAIN

ALL BIDS REJECTED FOR REMODELING OF COTTAGES AT HOME

Will Re-Advertise For Bids—Cost Would Exceed $73,000

All bids submitted for remodeling work on twenty old cottages at the O. S. and S. O. Home, were rejected by the Home trustees at a special meeting Monday afternoon, because they did not come within the appropriation of $73,000.

Twenty bids were submitted, less than half of them being for the entire contract.

A member of the board said that the contract will be re-advertised at once, new bids to be received at a special meeting which will be held toward the last of the month, possibly Saturday, August 27.

A number of bids for the electrical work, plumbing, and carpentry were submitted separately. After the lowest offers were compiled, it was found that they did not come within the requirement. Assistant State Architect Scott attended the meeting, and assisted in compilation of the bids.

Trustees expect to go ahead immediately with repair work on the two old school buildings, so that some of it at least will be completed by the opening of the school term. Wiring, plumbing, floors and windows, will undergo repairs.

The legislature appropriated $73,000 for remodeling the old cottages at the home, which are part of the original group of buildings. They will be modernized as to stairways, plumbing and electrical wiring and fixtures.

This is part of the legislative appropriation for a building program at the home which includes the erection of a hospital and two new cottages at a combined cost of $140,000. Preliminary work on the new buildings will probably be started in the spring.

SWIMMERS ENTER MARATHON MEET

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 16.—Marathon swimmers will jump off of the Coney Island pier here August 27 in the annual marathon swim sponsored by the Cincinnati Gymnasium Athletic Club in the Ohio River. The contestants will swim four and a half miles to the Gym boathouse.

Lyle Hubbard, Toledo, last year's winner, is entered again this year. John Dithmer, of the Hoosier Athletic Club and winner of the 1926 race, will be a strong contender. Walter Thayer of the Central Y. M. C. A. here and George Morin, of Detroit, are also favorites.

IRISH POWER

Thomas Johnson (above), labor leader, is expected to succeed President Cosgrave of Ireland, who is being forced out by Eamon de Valera adherents.

FIGHT PROMOTER ADMITS SHOOTING

CLEVELAND, Aug. 16.—Lawrence Lupo, local fight promoter, was at liberty under $20,000 bond today, following his confession to Chief Assistant Prosecuting Attorney J. C. Connell, that he was the man who shot and killed Ralph H. Myers, former deputy sheriff. Lupo claims he shot in self defense, and his attorney, Samuel Doerflinger says the defense will be based on that plea.

Myers was killed Friday night, following an argument at a roadhouse in Parma Heights.

PILOTS CONFIDENT SECOND ATTEMPT AT TRIP WILL SUCCEED

Junkers Will Give Same Aviators New Opportunity

DESSAU, Germany, Aug. 16.—The German aviators, Johann Ristic, Cornelius Edzard, Friedrich Loose and Herman Koehl, who were forced to turn back after starting on a non-stop flight to New York, were assured today by officials of the Junkers works that they would receive another opportunity to attempt a trans-Atlantic flight.

Disappointment over the failure of the planes, Europa and Bremen, is giving away to determination that the next effort must be a success.

The Bremen, which landed yesterday afternoon at 4:20 o'clock, after spending twenty-two hours in the air battling headwinds, rain and fog, was overhauled today and found to be in good condition.

Professor Junkers, head of the Junkers works, who arrived at the Dessau flying field soon after the Bremen landed, congratulated the flyers upon their courage in turning back.

"You're the proper thing," said Professor Junkers, "for it would have been useless to attempt to go under the circumstances."

Loose and Koehl were asked if they would make another attempt at a trans-Atlantic flight. Both replied in unison:

"Surest thing you know."

Loose said that the Bremen encountered bad weather during the whole twenty-two hours. It was aloft. There were alternative bursts of rain and wind while the thunder shook the plane from propellers to tail. The atmosphere was thick, the murk varying from a rainy mist to heavy yellow fog.

MANY OHIO LEGION MEN GOING TO PARIS

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—Ohio's delegation to the American Legion convention in Paris next month, will number around 1,000, or nearly one-fifth of the total of former service men who will invade Paris when the "Second A. E. F." convenes in the French capital, according to announcements here today by Legion officials.

Cleveland ranks first in the number of convention reservations. Cincinnati second, Columbus third and Toledo fourth.

TO PATROL LAKE
YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 16.—The city council here has passed an ordinance providing for two men to patrol Lake Milton, following receipt of reports that petty and boozing parties were being staged on an "all-night" plan, it was said.

Eight Navigators And Pretty Girl Teacher Accompany Pilots—Even "Wise Men" Unable To Select Winner

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 16.—The world's greatest aerial derby is on today.

Groomed to perfection, nine planes awaited the signal flag which at noon will send them zooming out across the Pacific in an epochal race to Hawaii.

Nine pilots, eight navigators and a charming young Michigan "schoolmarm," Miss Mildred Doran, prepared to gamble their lives on the ability to span by air the 2,400 miles of trackless sea.

For the first to land on the island of Oahu waited a $25,000 pot of gold. To the second a prize of $10,000 was to be the reward. For the balance there was only the glory of achievement—the setting of a new milestone in aerial progress.

For once the rail birds were at a loss to pick a winner. There was no form chart on which to base predictions. The pilots, the navigators and the lone passenger exuded confidence.

Mechanically their steeds of the aerial trail blazed only last month air were ready. Each navigator by Lieutenants. Maitland and Hegenberger, army flyers, and by Ernie Smith and Emory H. Bronte, civilian airmen.

Strung across the Pacific a network of naval and commercial ships were ready to render assistance in case of disaster.

Humming steadily its message of safety, the army radio beacon was in readiness to guide the planes equipped with radio.

In Hawaii a welcome of tremendous proportions awaited the successful birdmen.

The prayers of scores of mothers, wives, sweethearts and children went with the racers of the air as their kin prepared for the grand adventure of the air.

Originally fifteen entrants, six to day had been scratched. Death, the grim reaper, removed two of the starters with a toll of three lives. Fate was kinder to a third, the plane was wrecked but its occupants escaped. Two failed to secure their planes in time and the sixth withdrew.

It was a picturesque flock of Dole birds that was ready for their attempt to annihilate time and space. Seven monoplanes and two biplanes faced the starters barrier. A riot of color ranged from the beautiful golden wings of the San Francisco "Golden Eagle" to the red, white and blue combination of Augy Pedlar which has been dubbed "The Little Red School House" because of its school teacher passenger.

"H-B-H" stood forth on one of the planes. "Hell bent for Honolulu" its pilot interpreted, recalling the "Heaven, Hell or Honolulu" slogan of Ernie Smith, who escaped disaster by a narrow margin on his memorable flight to Hawaii which ended in a kiawe tree on the island of Molokai.

To win the race the contestants must land on the island of Oahu and unless forced down by lack of gasoline or conditions out of their control must end their flight at Wheeler Field, twenty miles out of Honolulu.

HOLD SUSPECT WHEN WOMAN FOUND SLAIN

GALLOPLIS, O., Aug. 16.—E. J. Costello, 25, of Huntington, W. Va., and Ashland, Ky., is being held in the county jail here, while Galia County authorities attempted to solve the mystery surrounding the strangulation and death of Mrs. William Buck, 37, Grimus Landing, W. Va., early Monday. No charges have been filed against Costello, though federal authorities have been asked to investigate in anticipation of filing charges of violating the Mann act, against Costello.

According to Costello's story, he with Mrs. Buck, and the latter's sister Mrs. L. A. Wright, registered at a hotel here Sunday night. Mrs. Buck occupied a room by herself, while Costello and Mrs. Wright occupied an adjoining room. Mrs. Buck's room was entered during the night. She was found dead, when attempts were made to awaken her Monday.

Mrs. Wright was released from custody, after being held several hours.

SPECTATORS HURT AS STANDS COLLAPSE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—One man was confined to a hospital here today with a broken leg and eleven others, mostly women, were cut and bruised or shaken up, as the result of a collapse of a section of wooden stands at Beulah Park race track here late yesterday.

Fred E. Worch, of Columbus, was the only spectator seriously injured.

The section of stand, in which about sixty persons were seated, collapsed as many stood and shouted at the finish of the fourth race, and hurled many women visitors, Ladies' Day guests of the management, to the ground.

FIRST AIR TRUCK TO VISIT DAYTON

DAYTON, O., Aug. 16.—Dayton is expected a visit from the first aerial truck built and placed into commission in about ten days. It was constructed at the Ford plant in Detroit and is coming to Dayton, merely as a tribute to the Wright brothers. It was sold to an eastern company for $45,000, it was said and is capable of hauling a two ton load. It has a seventy foot wing spread, the fuselage is 56 feet long and the power plant is a 700 horse power motor.

According to announcements the air truck will be the first to deliver a cargo of goods to foreign soil, the destination being Havana, Cuba. Following the Cuban trip the truck will be flown from New York to Dayton, where it will be inspected by Wright Field experts.

AVIATRIX KILLED WHEN MAKING MOVIE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 15.—Miss Gladys Roy, 25-year-old aviatrix, of Minneapolis, was dead here today, a victim of injuries suffered late Monday, when she stepped into the path of the propeller of her plane at Watson Field, where she was taking part in the filming of a moving picture.

The film, which was to include Miss Evelyn Wilgus, of Russell's Point, recently chosen to represent Ohio in the Atlantic City bathing beauty contest, was near completion when Miss Roy, after starting her engine, unconsciously walked into the propeller, which struck her twice on the head. She lived but two hours after the accident.

BIBLE THOUGHT

GOD'S CHILDREN:—Blessed is the man whom Thou chastenest, O Lord, and teachest him out of Thy law. Psalm 94:12

FUNNY BUT SERIOUS

One of the amusing situations brought about by the unexpected announcement of President Coolidge that he would not be a candidate for another term is the sudden bobbing up of "Big Bill" Thompson, Mayor of Chicago, as a willin' Barkis for White House honors. Probably nobody else sees any qualifications in "Big Bill" for the exalted post once held by Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and other great men, but what of that? His ambition may have aims other than those of purely personal advancement.

A curious feature of the muddle created by Mr. Coolidge's withdrawal is that of the three candidates most prominently named for the Republican nomination, Messrs. Hoover, Dawes and Lowden, the two last hail from Illinois, which is also the habitat of Chicago's mayor. Now it happens that as a particularly practical politician, and one identified with the Small faction of Illinois Republicans, "Big Bill" has no use for statesmen of the Lowden and Dawes type who deal in ideas rather than in votes. As boss of the G. O. P. machine in Chicago Thompson will control the selection of national convention delegates from that city, and it can easily be seen that if he wishes to be acclaimed as the favorite son of the Sucker state and his political partner, Governor Small, can easily bring that about. The rest of the country may not enthuse over the idea, but if he can put the quietus on the Dawes and Lowden candidacies, so far as their own state is concerned, he will doubtless be satisfied.

MRS. COOLIDGE HAS SOME SAY

Mrs. Coolidge is said to have counseled President Coolidge to retire from his office at the close of his present term. One can well see why she would feel that he would be wise not to undertake this tremendous strain for four years more.

And it must be a most onerous burden to be a president's wife. People who have seen Mrs. Coolidge recently think her face shows the strain of it. She, too, must carry on her shoulders the cares of a nation. She must act as a kind of social guide to the president and help him over the many difficult places where a woman's tact and instinct are so helpful.

Mrs. Coolidge would not consider her own personal burden in asking the president to retire. She would be game to stand it if he could. But a woman in her position considers something beside personal and political ambition. The life and health of her husband are given to her keeping, and she feels that they have a right to be protected.

"SAFETY CONSCIOUSNESS"

To check the rapid growth of fires and industrial accidents, people must get the safety habit, or develop a "safety consciousness." Safety, like other things, is largely a matter of habit not only in industrial life but in all forms of activity.

The human element is the greatest single factor in fire and accident prevention. Safety engineering has gone far in recent years in the direction of mechanical safe-guarding, but no matter how great the factor of safety may be, mechanically considered, it can be neutralized if the machine or property is not properly handled. No one can do this for the worker, and his own self-interest should prompt him to develop a safety consciousness.

The Way of the World

MOLECULES

Fitzhugh Green, eminent scientist, says that if every molecule of starch in Dad's collar were a glass bead they would make a necklace 100,000 miles long—enough to stretch four times around the earth. Starch is made of sunlight and the gases of the air. Every creature exhales carbon dioxide and plants inhale it. This gas is converted into sugar, and sugar condensed into starch. Masses of starch are found in seeds and roots. Nothing is indestructible. Everything changes.

How about the soul—which cannot be reduced to molecules?

THINK ABOUT ELECTIONS

There will be many elections in this country this fall. There will be some primary elections this summer. Elections are important for two reasons. First, by means of them we have a chance to get better officers in high places. In the second place, elections make us think about our government, our democracy. Anything that makes us think about that is important.

Think about election. Think about candidates. Exercise your privilege to vote—and exercise your mind by thinking.

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE

OFFS BY Marjorie K. Rawlinas

SWEET IN THE EVENING

SWEET, in the evening, is my well-earned rest.
The easy armchair and the open book.
The sleepy kitten in my lap's warm nest—
My apron hanging idly from my hook.

Pleasant, to look about the house and see
No special task that must be done just yet.
The dishes washed and put away, I'm free
Kitchens and pans, this evening, to forget.

Grateful the peace and calm, when all the day
With comings and goings and much sound was filled.
Traffic and people on their noisy way
The world, like me, is weary and is stilled.

Nodding at last, the little drowsy heads
I hear the little play-worn, lagging feet
Trudging upstairs to find the cool clean beds—
Sound dear to me, and in the evening, sweet.

MORE BEAUTIFUL SCENERY SPOILED

Household Hints

BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Let us try jellied meat roll for dinner the next day. It must be made the day before using of very early in the morning. Here is an excellent recipe. Creamed potatoes are always nice to serve with this kind of a meat as they constitute the one hot dish and are quickly and easily prepared.

Jellied Meat Roll

Creamed Potatoes Pickled Beets
Buttered New Carrots
Huckleberry Tarts
Tea or Coffee

TODAY'S RECIPES

Try Jellied Meat Roll—One and one-half pounds chopped meat, salt and pepper to taste, two teaspoons chopped onion, one-half cup olives chopped, two eggs, six tablespoons milk, two tablespoons flour, two hard cooked eggs. Mix together all ingredients except hard cooked eggs. Place half the mixture in loaf pan, set the hard cooked eggs in it, and to end, and pile the remaining mixture on top; place pan in another half full of water and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 45 minutes.

One egg stewed and strained to-matoes, salt to taste, two tablespoons gelatin, one-fourth cup cold water, one-half teaspoon allspice, one bay leaf, one-eighth teaspoon pepper. To tomatoes, add salt and seasonings, and the gelatin, which has been soaked in cold water for five minutes. Have tomatoes boiling hot. Pour over sliced meat loaf and place in refrigerator until firm.

Huckleberry Tarts—Line a deep pie dish with plain paste. Turn cup upside down in the middle. Fill around it with huckleberries. Add sugar to taste. Lay a wide strip of plain paste around the edge of the dish. Cover and press the edges firmly together with a pastry jagger. Bake in hot oven twenty-five minutes and serve with powdered sugar sprinkled thickly on top. All juicy fruits are excellent cooked in the same way.

SUGGESTIONS

Important Trifles.

Keep the paraffin in a small, covered lipped saucepan or individual teapot so it can be quickly melted and easily poured.

If the meat is exceptionally tough, rub baking soda into it; let it stand several hours and wash it well before cooking.

When household linens wear out in the hemstitched hem, join the linen to the hem with a novelty braid. It doubles the life of the article and looks well.

CRYSTALLIZED APPLES

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

Six apples, two cups sugar, one and one-half cups water, one-half lemon, whipped cream. Make a syrup of the sugar and water, slice the lemon very thin into it. Cook fifteen minutes. Have the apples of good quality and even size. Pare and core, cook carefully in the syrup five or ten minutes, watching them that they do not break. Arrange in a warm dish, pour remaining syrup over. When cold fill centers with chopped nuts or anything desired. Garnish with whipped cream and the lemon-slices.

WIFE PRESERVERS

One should keep kitchen scissors for cutting raisins and figs, lettuce, parsley and so on.

Kellygrams

BY FREDC KELLY

EVEN LOAFERS ARE USEFUL

A friend of mine, intending to make a hiking trip through England a year or two ago, took only old clothes with him, and looked like a laborer when he appeared before the British immigration officers.

They appeared somewhat excited, for calm British, and did not want to let him enter.

But they became much more hospitable when he assured them that he was there only for sight-seeing and not to seek work.

Thousands of English laborers were already out of work and one more man to compete with them for such jobs as could be found, would add to their troubles. But a man having no purpose except to wander about and spend his money, was welcome.

All of which goes to show that no virtue is ever quite 100 per cent. Every book of wise maxims, not only enjoins men to win their bread by sweat of the brow, but declares the loafer. Whoever falls to contribute his share of work in any community is a menace, a parasite, a bad egg.

How to Achieve Beauty

RECONDITIONING THE ARMS AND ELBOWS

In my last talk on reclaiming your beauty points before the new season, I discussed the hands and how to make them one of your chief beauty assets. I told you that you must not think of your hands as stopping at the wrists. Think rather of carrying your finger tips and having every bit of you, from your face to the carefully-shaped, gleaming nails, just as perfect as thoughtful care can make it.

Be sure not to neglect your elbows. When you apply cold cream to your face and your hands, remember to rub a little into the elbow region, too.

Here is an excellent night treatment for your elbows that will keep them soft, white and as lovely as any part of your body could be. First, wash your elbows thoroughly in warm, soapy water. Take two lamb's wool powder puffs and smear them liberally with a rich, nourishing cream, then fasten them over the elbows with adhesive tape. If you do not care to use the lamb's wool puffs, as a drug store, made especially for this purpose. Dancers often use a method very similar to this for keeping their knees beautiful.

One of the first essentials to arm beauty is whiteness. This means not only bleaching out the tan, for which I have given you hints in previous talks, but keeping them absolutely free from dark, superfluous hair as well. This dark hair growth gives an impression of uncleanness. If you do not care to use a depilatory, and I do not advise you to start using one unless it is absolutely necessary, you will find you can greatly improve the appearance of your arms by bleaching the hairs. A good bleach is baking soda dissolved in water. Apply this before going to bed at night. It is especially desirable because it does not leave a yellow, glistening effect. Personally, I prefer a bleaching cream because it serves the double purpose of keeping the skin smoothly soft and bleaching the hair growth as well.

If you are troubled with the "goose flesh" sort of roughness between your elbow and shoulder, you should use a good stimulating wash that will bring the blood up to the surface. You can get this kind of a wash in the form of beauty creams which stir up the circulation and remove the rough, dead skin that usually accompanies this condition. Follow the wash with a cold cream to soften up the skin.

I have spoken now of reconditioning the arms and elbows, and this brings us to the beauty that needs most care and usually gets less than any. That is the neck, in my next talk I shall tell you how to give it the care to make it a thing of beauty.

TULSA ORGANIZES LONGWORTH BOOM

TULSA Okla., Aug. 16.—The first "boom" in the country for Nicholas J. Longworth, speaker of the house, for chief executive of the United States, has been launched in Tulsa.

Col. Clarence B. Douglas is president of the organization which is to be known as Longworth Legion No. 1.

"I hope to make the Longworth Legion national in scope," said Douglas. "Last spring in Washington, I discussed the plan with the speaker, who told me he preferred that nothing be done until Mr. Coolidge made known his stand."

DANDRUFF, BALDNESS AND GRAYING HAIR

Forms of Dandruff

There are two general forms of dandruff; the simple, or dry, form (pityriasis simplex capitis), and a more serious form, the oily (pityriasis seborrhoeica). If the simple form is not cured, it may go on to the more serious or oily form.

The order of the treatment for both types of dandruff is: first, to remove the scales; second, to destroy the germs; third, to bring the scalp to its normal condition. The removal of the scales is briefly:

It is to scrub the scalp with a pair of stiff, clean brushes, shake out the loose dandruff with your fingers, and brush some more, then massage the scalp also. A fine comb may be used first, if it is used gently enough not to injure the scalp.

After the removal of the scales the washing. The frequency of the washing will depend upon the stage of the disease. If the condition is severe, at first it may demand a daily shampoo, and later, once a week, or once every two weeks, will be sufficient.

Any mild soap may be used for the shampoo. If you cannot have soft or distilled water, a little lemon juice or vinegar in the last cup of rinsing water will keep the hair from being sticky.

For the oily form of dandruff, after the hair has dried, medication may be applied with the fingers to the scalp (not the hair). It should be used daily for three days. After the disease is controlled, then once a week or less will probably be often enough if the daily care is kept up.

Jackson recommends a three per cent solution of resorcin in alcohol for the medication in the oily form of dandruff. As resorcin is apt to give a rusty stain to gray hair, three per cent of salicylic acid can be used instead of the resorcin.

Baldness

One of my textbooks on skin diseases states that eighty per cent of baldness of all sorts is due to dandruff, so you can see that the prevention of dandruff means the prevention of baldness in a large majority of cases. Good massage of the scalp, twice daily, five to ten minutes at a time, if persistently kept up for months, will revive the hair roots if not dead. I personally know two men, and both over fifty, who have grown a lot of new hair by this method.

Gray Hair

Gray hair is apparently a normal change with advancing years. Those who are gray prematurely usually inherit this characteristic. Passing causes for grayness are chronic debilitating diseases, prolonged worry and mental strain, neuralgia of the face and head, local injuries and diseases of the scalp. When the grayness is due to some such passing cause, the process may stop after the cause is removed.

Dyeing the hair is going out of practice because most hair dyes are made from minerals which may be absorbed by the system and cause a slow poisoning.

The vegetable dyes, such as extract of nut gall, oak or hemlock bark, black walnut, sage, etc., are not so apt to poison.

Effect of Nutrition
Now, as for the effect of the general nutrition on the hair: While you often find heavy hair on those who apparently are not normally nourished (are either too fat or too thin), we can perhaps consider the factors which favor a strong and vigorous hair.

Our hair papillae, with perhaps larger and more vigorous blood vessels in the scalp. We know, however, that in any debilitating disease the hair is apt to fall out. It is found in nutrition laboratories that diet has a decided effect on the fur of the animals used for experimental purposes.

On an unbalanced diet, or an insufficient one—especially one lacking in vitamins and mineral matter—the fur becomes rough and sparse. There is no doubt that the hair on human beings is also affected, as do other structures of the body, from improper diets.

GALLAHER CO. BUYS MORROW DRUG STORE

Purchase of the Morrow Drug Company's central store at Limestone and High Streets, Springfield, by the J. F. Gallaher drug company of Dayton, was announced Tuesday. The Morrow drug company operates eight drug stores in Springfield in addition to the one sold to Gallaher, which is the largest.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

YOUNG WOES

Too many of us who are past our youth, or, frankly, middle-aged, it would seem, occasionally think that the world has no use for persons over thirty. That youth is the one thing the world needs and for the young—and them only—it is a very charming place.

The letters that come to my desk, however, do not bear this out. Young people are lovely, they are unhappy in their love affairs, they have made mistakes that threaten to spoil their lives. Following are two letters from young girls whose troubles seem real to them, although we may smile a bit at them:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young girl 21 years of age and am considered very pretty. I am a blonde with golden hair, blue eyes, nice complexion. My mother is my trouble. My mother is dead. I have had four proposals. Two of the young men I didn't care for and the other two I did. The last one I was to have married. I had everything ready for my home when he started going out with other girls. I am always disappointed when I am in love. Most men of today are not worthy of a good, decent girl. Why is it men always say so many insulting things to me? This is what they say: 'Oh, blondes are deceiving; I wouldn't trust a blonde,' etc. Is it because when I love a man I couldn't be untrue and they cheat me? I am getting so I don't trust any man."

"DISAPPOINTED BLONDE"
I did not have room for all your letter, my dear. About your hair, isn't it lovely? It is so pretty? Take good care of it. You answer just right by thanking people for the compliments, but you needn't be embarrassed. I really and truly think that your trouble is you are too serious. You think too much about yourself. You need to cultivate a sense of humor. Men are just teasing you when they say those things about blondes. Every one has more or less trouble. The loss of your mother is, of course, irreparable, but you're young and pretty and should be having a good time. Be true blue, don't hurt unnecessarily, and cheer up. The right man will come along after awhile and he'll want a jolly, happy wife as well as a pretty one."

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl of 16 and have company. I go with a very nice boy, but I don't like any of them. I really was in love once, or thought I was, but the boy didn't prove worthy. I don't like any of the boys, and am really never happy while with them. Much rather be with a girl friend. How can I conquer that feeling and meet the right fellow? I really would like a home of my own and a good husband some day."

"DISGUSTED."
At your age, Disgusted, I wouldn't lose much sleep over not liking the boys. Just have a good time with the girls. No man, no matter how nice, can take the place of a good pal of your own sex, and if the boys like you, as they seem to, you will eventually meet one you can love."

I Have Said in My Heart

FASHION

It is somewhat strange to most young women, that Florenz Ziegfeld, who is supposed to be the best judge of attractive young women in the world should lay more stress on personality than on mere beauty.

The greatest beauty market in the world is Hollywood, where you can see any day on the streets or in the restaurants, hundreds of exquisitely lovely young girls; but after a glance one would not remark upon seeing them, "That is the beautiful girl I saw here yesterday."

Out of the crowd you can pick a dozen or so, who stick in your memory. These are the ones who stand out from the rest. Over there is a girl with short, tousled hair and brown eyes. She is not particularly pretty—some would not even call her good looking, and yet, with her gladness personality, she is one of the most popular young women on the screen.

There is no use of making a fetish of beauty, for history tells us that the women who have been loved most have not been the most beautiful.

One thing every woman, old and young, must remember, if she would be called beautiful from sixteen to sixty, and that is to follow the fashions in beauty, for there are fashions in beauty quite as much as there are fashions in gowns, hats, or shoes.

Lips that are artificially scarlet

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Rain begins to pour down on the city in great angry sheets. And the laborers working on the new paving of Park Ave., dash from the excavation and take refuge under the canopies of fashionable hotels. They stand there, chewing tobacco, smoking and spitting, glassing the rain.

Women gingerly pick their way through a maelstrom of evil-smelling overalls in order to enter ornate town cars.

Not more than a few years ago I noticed a small lunch room with a sign hanging in front reading "Coffee Pot." Alongside of the lettering was a silhouette of a pot. There were but few of these places then, and they served merely snacks, such as doughnuts, crullers, cakes, pies and ready-made sandwiches. Coffee was the big attraction and it was good coffee.

These first "Coffee Pots" then were attractive little places. They were clean, efficient, and the food, although limited in variety, was satisfying when one only wanted a bite between meals. But now the situation is greatly changed. Virtually every white-tiled or Greek restaurant in the city now calls itself a "Coffee Pot."

The menu is as bad and uninteresting as ever, but the "Ladies Invited" sign has been taken down and the stock coffee pot sign hung up. Apparently all of the signs are manufactured by the same firm. They are absolutely alike. This is also true of the cafeteria. The signs on these are of the same lettering; they are made of letters which stand out from the wall on which they are placed. This is certainly a city of standardization.

I watched a monkey playing in the Variety pet shop on West 49th St. Someone had dropped bits of a banana into the dog pen. The monkey would sit on the rail above, then, watching his chance, slip quickly down and snatch a bit of banana. The dogs would turn and pursue him. With one leap, he was up again on the rail, grinning at the growling mob below, and devouring the tidbit.

Perhaps it is because I seldom a few years ago would have made one suspected of being a scarlet woman. Peach tinted cheeks are worn but seldom talked about in grandmother's time. And as for darkened eyelashes—if yours happened to be almost white you had to leave them that way, until some girl decided she would darken hers and the seed was planted.

All her friends declared that the girl with the darkened eyelashes looked like "one of those play actresses," but she went right home and, with a burnt match, tried it on herself.

I remember how shocked I was the first time I ever saw a woman use a vanity case at table, and that was not so long ago. Yesterday I saw both a grandmother and a grand-daughter repairing their complexion at a nearby table in the Biltmore Hotel dining room.

Once in a while you see a woman who would not confess to forty-five, wearing her hat perched upon the top of her head, which tells the world as loudly as though she was proclaiming it through a microphone, she would never see forty again.

Other women still cling to curls, while the girl of today, her hair cut at the same shape as her brother, strides by.

One of the first rules that a woman who would be beautiful from youth to age is to "march with her regiment" and keep perfectly and scrupulously clean.

"I never wash my face unless I wash my whole body," said the best woman I know. I found out that she took always one and sometimes two thorough baths a day.

have my pants pressed. Or it may be that I have a kind face. At any rate, I am always receiving unsolicited confidences from waiters, taxi drivers, bus conductors, new boys, soda jerkers and ushers. The other night I was standing in the foyer of the Rialto at the opening of the Duncan sisters' new film, "Topsy and Eva." The young man who stood at the door, directing those who entered, was listening sullenly to short, terse words from the head usher. Evidently he was being bawled out. When the superior left the lad cursed under his breath furiously. Three people entered.

"Seats this way, please," he murmured, with cultured expression, in dulcet tones.

Then he turned to me. "Head usher!" he sniffed. "If he's a head usher, I'm a doorman." And the thing that troubles me is that I still do not know whether the position of doorman is a lofty or a servile one, in the code of the movie usher.

Most radio announcers are bachelors. That's because so few women will stand for a man who can talk to her when she can't answer back.

PLANS FOR COMMUNITY SUPPER OUTLINED AT MEETING MONDAY

The entire city having a meal together and then joining in one big after supper frolic and jollification—this is the plan that took definite shape at the meeting of various women's committees for the community celebration, Monday afternoon at City Hall.

Mrs. Charles Keble, chairman, called on the committee chairmen present for reports in regard to the serving of the cafeteria supper which is to be the opening feature of the evening's program at Shawnee Park, Monday evening, August 22. The reports showed that all of the churches of the city are planning to join in providing food for the huge meal and in attending to the details of serving.

BLACK HOPE LOOMS AS NEGRO DEFEATS MALONEY IN FIRST

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 12.—Another dark cloud loomed today as a result of the sensational one-round knockout of Jim Maloney by George Godfrey, giant Leiper, Penna., negro, in Shibe Park last night. Godfrey's sensational finish of the Bostonian in less than a minute of actual fighting stamps him as a contender for Gene Tunney's crown.

Towering six feet four, head and shoulders above the Bostonian, and boxing with the rapidity of a lightweight, Godfrey never gave Maloney a chance to get started. Springing from their corners with the clanging of the opening gong, the men exchanged lefts and rights without any damage. A clinch followed. Then Maloney undertook to force the fighting despite Godfrey's weight advantage of thirty-one pounds. The negro, however, refused to break ground and started wading in. Two left hooks to the body and jaw and a right cross draped Maloney over the ropes with the negro on top of him.

Untangling himself from the ropes, Godfrey sprang back to the center of the ring and the rebound of the ropes hurled Maloney face forward to the floor. There he lay motionless, while Referee Tommy Rellly counted him out. The knockout blow, a left hook to the jaw, lifted Maloney almost a foot from the floor, and left the 15,000 fans amazed at the terrific hitting power of the huge negro.

CENTRAL CINCHES PLACE BY FORFEIT

Central High clinched second place in Division A of the Xenia Playground Association League by its forfeit victory over the Rotary Club when the latter team failed to appear for its scheduled game Monday.

By this win Central may yet come out in a tie for first place if the Junior Business Men lose one of their three remaining games and may actually win the top position if the league leaders should drop two.

The remaining games of the week find Division A teams playing off postponed contests of an earlier date while all of the Division B clubs finish their regular schedules.

Tuesday night the Firemen engage the Lang Chevrolet Co. in an important Division B game.

style at long tables and each may choose whatever is desired. The prices will be as low or lower than restaurant prices so that every one is assured of a generous return for every cent invested in the meal. The reasonable prices will make it possible for the whole family to take supper at the park. The various lodges and clubs of the city will have charge of different parts of the "cafeteria" such as the ice cream, watermelon, candy, etc. The reports presented Tuesday assured a hearty response from the women of the city and all attending the supper will be served with delicious home cooked food.

Mrs. Keble announced the reception committee, which will meet the speakers of the occasion, Senator Simeon Fess and Dr. W. R. McChesney, as follows: S. O. Hale, John W. Prugh, George Little, J. A. Chew, George Kelly, J. D. Steele, P. H. Flynn, Dr. B. R. McClellan, Mrs. DeEtta Wilson, Miss Mary Ervin, Senator L. T. Marshall, Harry Rice, Frank Smith and C. S. Frazer.

Deliver Belden will have charge of the automobile parking and Cox Athletic Field will be used for this purpose.

Women who will have charge of the supper have had experience in serving large numbers of people at church and lodge suppers and efficient handling of the community supper is assured.

The committee in charge announces that the whole county is invited to attend the community supper and the celebration following. It is hoped to be able, from the proceeds from the supper, to raise the full amount needed for the erecting of a shelter house at Shawnee Park.

GRANGE TO PICNIC AT YELLOW SPRINGS

Several hundred people are expected to attend the Greene County Pomona Grange picnic at Bryan Farm, Yellow Springs, Wednesday, August 24. The picnic will feature the regular meeting of Pomona.

A. A. Neff, Beaver Creek, will have charge of the stunts and field events during the day, when prizes will be offered. The picnic will be held all day, with a basket dinner at noon.

In the afternoon, State Master Harry Caton, will address the crowd.

ESTRIDGE NOT HELD IN CINCINNATI; IS VICTIM OF MISTAKE

James Estridge, 44 Orchard St., is not under arrest in Cincinnati with George Rogers, Xenia who is held for questioning in connection with the Bryan robbery and assault, it was announced by police Tuesday.

The name of Estridge was confused with that of Virgil Bell, 720 E. Church St., this city, by Cincinnati officers who visited here Sunday, police say. Bell is still held in Cincinnati, charged, it is said, with carrying concealed weapons and pointing firearms. He, instead of James Estridge was arrested in Cincinnati early Sunday morning with Rogers, who later confessed, according to police, that he drove a car for two men who are alleged to have committed the Bryan robbery and assault. He denied knowledge of the actual crime, however.

James Estridge, his brother, Cornelius and Russell Galloway, all of Xenia, were arrested by Cincinnati officers here Sunday morning and taken to Cincinnati for questioning, but all were released when they cleared themselves of suspicion, and were permitted to return to Xenia.

They were questioned because they had made frequent trips to Cincinnati and Newport recently, and had been there in the company of Rogers. James Estridge who is at his home here, said that he, his brother and Russell Galloway had been making trips to Newport to call on girl friends.

Acid Stomach
"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five and fifty cent bottles, any drug store. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Peter's Adventures

A MEDDLER MISUNDERSTOOD
At this second around a curve came the Bees, laden with honey and flying low because the breeze was strong. They were in so much of a hurry that they didn't see Hoppy at all—never even dreamed that he was there. That fellow drew himself up to his full height and waited. Then, as the Wise little Fluff was the first to meet her fate, and one after another of her sisters were caught upon Hoppy's swift moving tongue. For a moment Peter was too horrified to speak. Then he gave a shrill cry, waved his arms frantically above his head and rushed straight towards the on-flying Bees. "I like Toad, but I can't let him harm all these cheery little workers. I shall have to save them," thought he.

"Shoo! Fly high! The bold brigand will catch you if you don't watch out!" yelled the boy, as loudly as he could.

At first sight of the small Two-Legs dashing so unexpectedly at them the Bees—and Bees are very quick tempered folks and liable to get mad at almost nothing at all—became cross and began to buzz excitedly. They quite misunderstood the friendly meddler.

"Who is this Two-Legs that screams at us so shrilly? What business is it of his where and how we fly, we'd like to know! Impudent fellow! We'll teach him to keep his place. No Human can tell us what to do when we are in the open. Come on, sisters! Let's surround him!"

Hoppy chuckled, and so loudly that even above the buzzing of the Bees the boy could plainly hear him. "Tee hee! There's gratitude! Try to warn the silly flyers of their danger and get stung for your pains! I hope you do! It will serve you right, boy, for interfering in my affairs!"

Next—"Saved in Spite of Themselves."

"SHOO! FLY HIGH! THE BOLD BRIGAND WILL CATCH YOU IF YOU DON'T WATCH OUT!"

head of the flying column reached him his little tongue played like lightning. It ran out empty, but alas, when it was returned to his wide-open mouth it carried a busy bee. The bold brigand was at his cruel work again.

Sally's Shoulders HER MAN HONEY LOU THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL ETC. by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of

He was on his knees, packing a suitcase.

READ THIS FIRST:
SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has not lived with her mother for years. The family consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAT and MILLIE, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework for her mornings and office work for MR. PEEVEY afterwards.
In the flat below the Jeromes lives TED SLOAN, who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's in the Nye-Naylor building. Nye hires Millie as his secretary and becomes blindly infatuated with her. Millie likes him but admits that she prefers a blond salesman named DAVIDSON, and she tries to get him a job with Nye. Davidson becomes smitten with Sally, who persuades him to keep away from the office.
Beau and Millie give so little towards the upkeep of the house that Sally Aunt Emily Jerome, who wants her to go into the restaurant business with her when she turns her country house into a seaside inn.
Beau gets some money from Ted Sloan by bad checks, and Sally borrows the money to pay him from Mr. Peevey. Beau uses it to "dope with MABEL WILSON, and Sally starts paying off the debt. He and Mabel use Mrs. Jerome's wedding present of some money to buy a second-hand car and rent a furnished flat.
Millie moves into Beau's old room to prevent his ever coming home with Mabel. But while she is in the hospital following an appendicitis operation, Beau and Mabel return to the flat because they can't support a home of their own. Mr. Jerome comes home because of Millie's illness, but does not stay long, and leaves just as Beau and Mabel move in. Sally, who is working for John Nye part time, during Millie's illness, predicts that there will be fireworks when Millie discovers that they are living at home again, and have put her things out of her room to have it themselves.
(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER XXXVIII
MILLIE came home from the hospital on the first Sunday in November. It was a chilly day, full of high winds and driving rain.
At 10 o'clock John Nye telephoned that he was going to bring her home in his closed car and wanted to know if Mrs. Jerome would like to drive with him to the hospital.
"I surely would love to go, Mr. Nye!" twittered Mrs. Jerome, smiling and nodding into the telephone as if he could see her face from his end of the wire. "I'll go and get dressed right away!"
She lumbered into her bedroom.
"I'll say she's getting dressed!" declared Mabel, the disrespectful one, 10 minutes later. "She's put on a hug-me-tight and a silk muffler and a short coat and a long coat over her dress! She looks like a tramp out for a hike. What do you call the ones who carry their whole wardrobe on their backs—bundle stuffs? Well, she looks just like a bundle stiff!"
She began to giggle, and Beau laughed with her from the davenport and smoking.
"Mother suffers from the cold, Mabel," Sally said quietly, as she put another shovelful of coal into the grate. "I wouldn't try to be funny at mother's expense if I were you."
Mabel let out another wild giggle. "That's where the old girl's got it on all of us! She's funny without trying to be!"
Sally set her lips and went on brushing up the ashes around the glowing grate.
She was very tired of having Mabel around the house. She was sick to death, she told herself, of the sound of Mabel's silly little laugh. Disgusted with Mabel because of the way she made fun of Mrs. Jerome. Tired of picking up after Mabel, who seemed to think that Sally was her bed-servant just because she was living in the same flat with her.
Mabel had a nasty little way of ordering her about. "Come here, Sally, and hook up my dress!" she would call; or, "Sally, it's 8 o'clock. Put my coffee on the table!"
"But I can stand all that, if only she and Beau pay their board," Sally had been telling herself all week.
And now it was Sunday—and the board money, which should have been paid into her hand the night before, had not been paid. Nor had either Beau or Mabel said a single word about it.
So Sally was worried, as she went from room to room, dusting mahogany surfaces, watering the plants, setting the dining room table.
"Put on an extra plate today, Sally. I'll ask Mr. Nye to have dinner with us when he brings Millie home," Mrs. Jerome said breathlessly as she passed through the room when John Nye came for her.
Standing at the front bay-window, hidden by the curtains, Sally watched him help her mother into his big closed automobile.

pecting friends to have dinner with him at home, and ran down the stairs as if he were very glad to get away.
Mabel looked pleased as Punch as the sound of his departing car died away out in the rainy street.
"Well, that's the time that he saw Millie with her horns and hoofs!" she said with great satisfaction. "I'll bet she's cooked her goose forever, as far as he's concerned. No man would want to marry a fish-wife temper like that, if you ask me!"

But Millie did not seem to have "cooked her goose" with John Nye. A week later she went back to work, and for three nights running, she had dinner with him down town. On the last of these nights she came into the bedroom at night, scenting the air with the leathery white gardenias that were pinned on her shoulder.
"My Johnny buys me everything!" she sighed happily. "He has more dollars than Rockefeller has oil cans, and he sure does know how to spend them! Sometimes I think I like him better than I did Davy Davidson, after all!"
Then for three nights she came home early and went to bed.
It was on Saturday night that Sally woke up with a feeling that somebody had called her.
She listened. The flat was wrapped in silence and in darkness. Outside the neighborhood seemed to be wrapped in darkness and silence, too. . . . It must be very late, she reasoned.

Then, all at once, a faint ray of light flashed across the wall of the hall outside her door. It faded and was gone.
By this time Sally was on her bare feet and moving slowly towards the open door.
The light flashed out upon the darkness before her once more, and she saw that it came from the room where Beau and Mabel were sleeping. She tiptoed down the hall, making no sound, scarcely breathing.
At the door she paused and cautiously peered into the room.
A small flash-light lay on the floor beside the big double bed, and by its light Beau knelt, packing a suitcase. Mabel, with her small, three-cornered mouth open, was snoring peacefully, in the bed above him.

HAWAII AERIAL DERBY IS LAUNCHED

COOLIDGE MAY SUCCEED JUDGE GARY NINE PLANES LEAVE CALIFORNIA IN RACE FOR $25,000 PRIZE

REPORT PRESIDENT WILL FILL VACANCY AS BOARD CHAIRMAN

Others Mentioned—Former Chief To Be Buried In Wheaton

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Chairmanship of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, made vacant by the death of Judge Elbert H. Gary, may be offered to President Coolidge if the President remains firm in his determination not to be a candidate for renomination and reelection, according to a report in Wall St., today.

But in the financial district the Coolidge report was met with considerable skepticism. The best guess of the financial community was that former Governor Nathan L. Miller, general counsel of the steel corporation, would be named as Mr. Gary's successor.

James A. Farrell, president of the corporation, is also mentioned as a possible successor, along with Myron C. Taylor, Senator David A. Reed, Pierre S. DuPont, Dwight Morrow, Eugene G. Grace and George Gordon Crawford. The finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation meets this afternoon at 2:30 and it is probable that a temporary chairman will be chosen. It is unlikely that any final choice will be made until J. P. Morgan returns from Europe.

The body of Judge Gary will be shipped to Chicago this afternoon on the Twentieth Century Limited. From Chicago it will be taken to Wheaton, Ill., for funeral services and burial Thursday. Judge Gary was born in Wheaton and he had expressed the wish to be buried there. Services will be conducted in the Gary Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, a gift of the deceased to the congregation.

There is much speculation concerning the size of the fortune left by the late steel master. The estimates run all the way from $10,000,000 to $45,000,000.

For the last twenty-four hours messages of condolence have been pouring in upon the Gary home, at 1130 Fifth Avenue, from all parts of the United States and Europe. Among them were messages from President Coolidge, Vice President Dawes, J. P. Morgan, Charles M. Schwab and many others.

The great chain of industrial plants, mines, and railways of the United States Steel Corporation, stretching all the way across the American continent, will be still temporarily during the funeral services Thursday.

Mrs. Gary is deeply affected by her husband's death. She refused to receive any visitors except relatives and her most intimate friends. Judge Gary died of chronic myocarditis with chronic endocarditis or inflammation of the membranes lining of the heart, as a contributing factor.

The end came so suddenly that there was no time to summon to his bedside his two daughters, Mrs. Robert W. Campbell, wife of the chairman of the trustees of Northwestern University, and Mrs. Gertrude Sutcliffe, of Chicago. Both daughters are in the Campbell home in Evanston and will meet the train bearing their father's body. They will accompany Mrs. Gary on to Wheaton. Mrs. Campbell has two children, the only grandchildren Judge Gary had. Mrs. Sutcliffe is a widow.

WHEATON, Ill., Aug. 16.—Wheaton today sorrowfully prepared to receive the funeral cortege of the town's most distinguished citizen. The body of Judge Gary will lie in state Wednesday afternoon at Gary Memorial Church, where the remains may be viewed by hundreds of local townspeople who numbered Judge Gary as a close personal friend. The Rev. Almer Pennewell, pastor of the church, is now in Missouri on vacation, but wired that he is returning to conduct the funeral services.

It was here that Judge Gary grew to manhood, practiced law, served the town as mayor and later became county judge. Despite the high offices that required his presence in the east throughout the greater part of the last century, Judge Gary never forgot the folks back home. The town is in deepest mourning today. All business houses will be closed Thursday, the day of the funeral. Delegations of business men and officials from nearby Illinois cities will come here and attend the funeral in a body.

DISCOVER DISEASE

MOONSVILLE, W. Va., Aug. 16.—The first case of infantile paralysis in Marshall County was reported today, when a six-year-old child was found to be suffering with the disease which has assumed serious proportions in neighboring Ohio cities. Steps may be taken here to enforce a precautionary quarantine to prevent spread of the disease.

MEMBERS OF FAMILY UNHURT; BLAME RADICAL SYMPATHIZERS

Lewis McHardy, Who Was In Panel Of Sacco-Vanzetti Trial, Target Of Latest Outrage—Had Been Threatened

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The East Milton home of Lewis McHardy, one of the jurors who found Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti guilty of the Braintree payroll murders in 1920, was wrecked early today by a powerful bomb. Five members of the McHardy family were thrown from their beds and were shaken up badly, but aside from a cut on the head sustained by Mrs. McHardy, none were injured.

Police are combing all nearby towns for the East Milton bombers, but no arrests have been made.

The explosion took place just a few hours before the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court assembled to hear final arguments from Sacco and Vanzetti's counsel, who are fighting for a new trial. As a result of the bomb outrage, additional guards have been placed about the court house, the state house and the state prison where the two self-admitted anarchists are held.

The McHardy family lived in a two and one-half story frame dwelling. The bomb, which had evidently been planted under a corner of the veranda, tore out the front part of the building, wrecked the veranda, demolished part of the north side, broke down all the doors and smashed all the windows. The detonation was heard about a mile and the concussion rocked the ground like an earthquake.

In the house asleep were Mr. and Mrs. McHardy and their three children—Theodore, 23; John, 28.

SUPREME COURT NOW HEARS DEFENSE FOR SACCO AND VANZETTI

Four Judges Sitting As Counsel Begins Final Effort

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The court house in Pemberton Square brought with armed guards, when the final effort to save Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti from the electric chair, opened today before the full bench of the state supreme court today.

The square was guarded by uniformed police and others patrolled the corridors within the old granite building. Approaches to the quiet confines of the supreme court room were watched. Two hundred guards were on duty.

Four members of the supreme court bench sat to hear defense attorney Arthur D. Hill, a former district attorney, and Attorney General Arthur K. Reading cross legal swords.

Those sitting were Justices Henry K. Braley, Edward P. Pierce, James B. Carroll and William Cushing Wait.

Every seat in the courtroom was occupied by lawyers, society women, and persons interested in the world-famous Sacco-Vanzetti case were among the spectators. Attorney Hill began arguments on bills of exception taken to adverse decisions to his motions for a writ of error, revocation and stay of sentence, the decision being by Justice George A. Sanderson of Supreme court. Another exception was to the denial of a motion for a new trial by Trial Judge Webster Thayer. All proceedings were based on the alleged prejudice of Judge Thayer against Sacco and Vanzetti because of their radical beliefs.

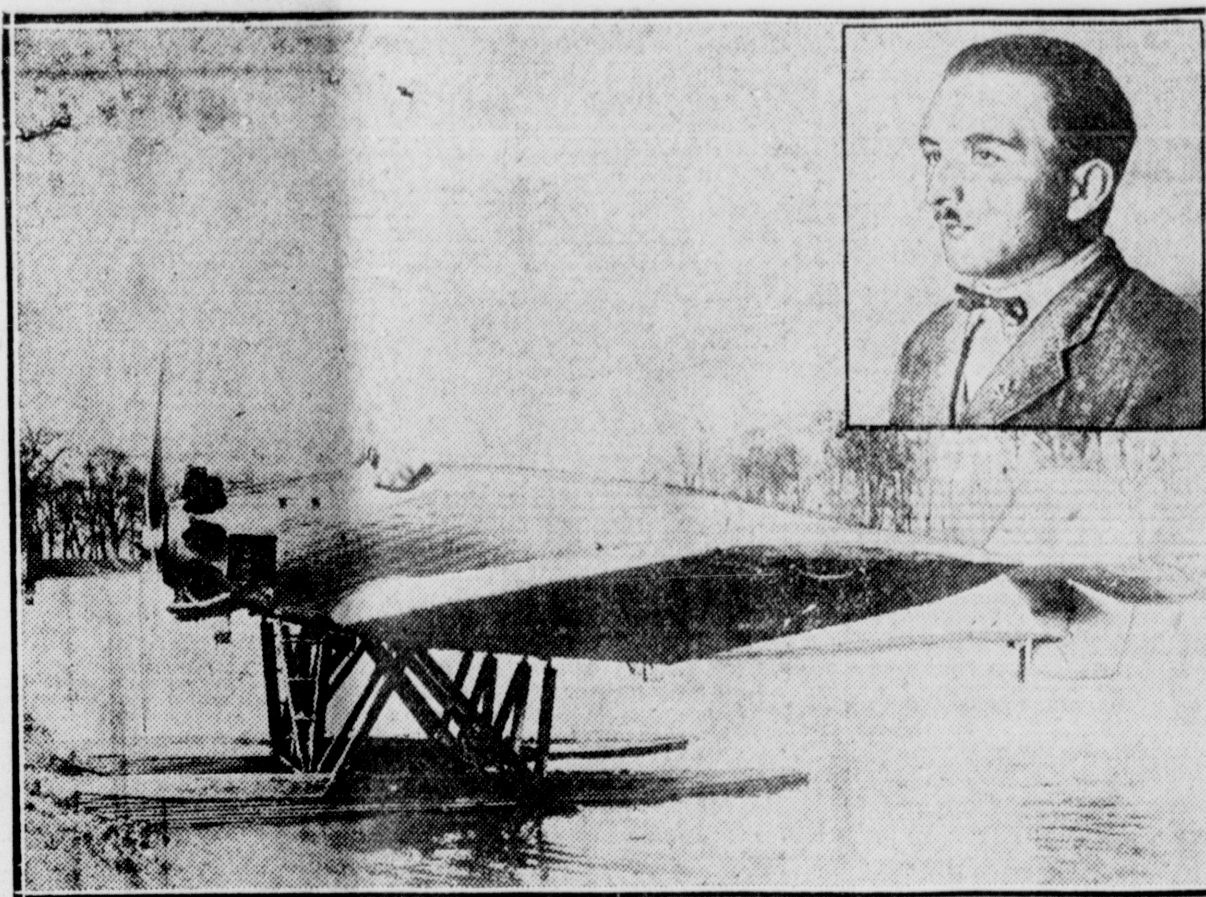

The respite granted by Governor Alvin T. Fuller to Sacco and Vanzetti and to Celestino Madeiros, bank cashier slayer, who said that the Braintree murders, for which Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted and committed by a Providence band of gangsters, ends at midnight August 22. For this reason speedy action was necessary.

Mrs. Sacco moved at the hearing soon after court opened. With intense interest she listened to the arguments of counsel for her husband, upon which the latter's life may hinge.

ALL BIDS REJECTED FOR REMODELING OF COTTAGES AT HOME

Will Re-Advertise For Bids—Cost Would Exceed $73,000

All bids submitted for remodeling work on twenty old cottages at the O. S. and S. O. Home, were rejected by the Home trustees at a special meeting Monday afternoon, because they did not come within the appropriation of $73,000.

Twenty bids were submitted, less than half of them being for the entire contract. A member of the board said that the contract will be re-advertised at once, new bids to be received at a special meeting which will be held toward the last of the month, possibly Saturday, August 27.

A number of bids for the electrical work, plumbing, and carpentry were submitted separately. After the lowest offers were compiled, it was found that they did not come within the requirement. Assistant State Architect Scott attended the meeting, and assisted in compilation of the bids.

Trustees expect to go ahead immediately with repair work on the two old school buildings, so that some of it at least will be completed by the opening of the school term. Wiring, plumbing, floors and windows, will undergo repairs.

The legislature appropriated $73,000 for remodeling the old cottages at the home, which are part of the original group of buildings. They will be modernized as to stairways, plumbing and electrical wiring and fixtures.

This is part of the legislative appropriation for a building program at the Home which includes the erection of a hospital and two new cottages at a combined cost of $140,000. Preliminary work on the new buildings will probably be started in the spring.

SWIMMERS ENTER MARATHON MEET

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 16.—Marathon swimmers will jump off of the Coney Island pier here August 27 in the annual marathon swim sponsored by the Cincinnati Gymnasium Athletic Club in the Ohio River. The contestants will swim four and a half miles to the Gym boathouse.

Lyle Hubbard, Toledo, last year's winner, is entered again this year. John Dithmer, of the Hoosier Athletic Club and winner of the 1925 race, will be a strong contender. Walter Thayer of the Central Y. M. C. A. here and George Morin, of Detroit, are also favorites.

IRISH POWER

Thomas Johnson (above), labor leader, is expected to succeed President Cosgrave of Ireland, who is being forced out by Eamon de Valera adherents.

FIGHT PROMOTER ADMITS SHOOTING

CLEVELAND, Aug. 16.—Lawrence Lupo, local fight promoter, was at liberty under $20,000 bond today, following his confession to Chief Assistant Prosecuting Attorney J. C. Connell, that he was the man who shot and killed Ralph H. Myers, former deputy sheriff, Friday night. Lupo claims he shot in self defense, and his attorney, Samuel Doerflinger says the defense will be based on that plea. Myers was killed Friday night, following an argument at a roadhouse in Parma Heights.

PILOTS CONFIDENT SECOND ATTEMPT AT TRIP WILL SUCCEED

Junkers Will Give Same Aviators New Opportunity

DESSAU, Germany, Aug. 16.—The German aviators, Johann Ristic, Cornelius Edzard, Friedrich Loose and Herman Koehl, who were forced to turn back after starting on a non-stop flight to New York, were assured today by officials of the Junkers works that they would receive another opportunity to attempt a trans-Atlantic flight.

Disappointment over the failure of the Bremen, Europa and Bremen, is giving way to determination that the next effort must be a success.

The Bremen, which landed yesterday afternoon at 4:20 o'clock, after spending twenty-two hours in the air battling headwinds, rain and fog, was overhauled today and found to be in good condition. Professor Junkers, head of the Junkers works, who arrived at the Dessau flying field soon after the Bremen landed, congratulated the flyers upon their courage in turning back.

"You did the proper thing," said Professor Junkers, "for it would have been useless to attempt to go under the circumstances."

Loose and Koehl were asked if they would make another attempt at a trans-Atlantic flight. Both replied in unison:

"Surest thing you know." Loose said that the Bremen encountered bad weather during the whole twenty-two hours it was aloft. There were alternative bursts of rain and wind while the thunder shook the plane from propellers to tail. The atmosphere was thick, the murk varying from a rainy mist to heavy yellow fog.

MANY OHIO LEGION MEN GOING TO PARIS

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—Ohio's delegation to the American Legion convention in Paris next month, will number around 1,000, or nearly one-fifth of the total of former service men who will invade Paris when the "Second A. E. F." convenes in the French capital, according to announcement here today by Legion officials.

Cleveland ranks first in the number of convention reservations. Cincinnati second, Columbus third and Toledo fourth.

TO PATROL LAKE YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 16.—The city council here has passed an ordinance providing for two men to patrol Lake Milton, following receipt of reports that petting and booze parties were being staged on an "all-night" plan, it was said.

Eight Navigators And Pretty Girl Teacher Accompany Pilots—Even "Wise Men" Unable To Select Winner

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 16.—The world's greatest aerial derby is on today.

Groomed to perfection, nine planes awaited the signal flag which at noon will send them zooming out across the Pacific in an epochal race to Hawaii.

Nine pilots, eight navigators and a charming young Michigan "schoolmarm," Miss Mildred Doran, prepared to gamble their lives on the ability to span by air the 2,400 miles of trackless sea.

For the first to land on the island of Oahu waited a $25,000 pot of gold. To the second a prize of $10,000 was to be the reward. For the balance there was only the glory of achievement—the setting of a new milestone in aerial progress.

For once the rail birds were at a loss to pick a winner. There was no form chart on which to base predictions. The pilots, the navigators and the lone passenger exuded confidence.

Mechanically their steeds of the aerial trail blazed only last month air were ready. Each navigator had passed a grilling test to prove his fitness to guide by the sun, the moon and the stars the course of his plane for the tiny islands in mid-Pacific.

To the gods of the air they were prepared to commend their fates.

On the basis of speed tests, the flyers expected to complete the race in twenty-two hours. But wind, rain, cloud and fog were factors to be met with which will finally determine the results of the race and probably the safety of the racers.

The planes were to follow the

AMERICAN SINGERS MOST PROMISING IN EUROPE FOR OPERAS

Michigan Warblers Signed For Chicago Civic Opera

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—American singers who have journeyed abroad for study, are now the most promising opera material in European opera houses, Herbert M. Johnson, manager of the Chicago Civic Opera company just returned from Europe with two new artists under contract, said today.

Johnson announced the engagement of two young Americans who have sung leading roles in Germany, Italy, France, and elsewhere. They are Chas. Baromeo, bass, Detroit, and Leone Kruse, soprano, Lamont, Mich.

Miss Kruse has appeared during the last four years in Dresden, Prague, Berlin and Munich and becomes the bride today of Lawrence Wolf, American tenor.

Baromeo, whose real name is Sikors, has been singing in Italian opera for three years, is a graduate of Michigan University and an overseas veteran.

Johnson was accompanied here by Henry G. Weber, conductor of the Chicago Opera, Charles Marshall, tenor, and several other artists.

SPECTATORS HURT AS STANDS COLLAPSE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—One man was confined to a hospital here today with a broken leg and eleven others, mostly women, were cut and bruised or shaken up, as the result of a collapse of a section of wooden stands at Beulah Park race track here late yesterday.

Fred E. Worsh, of Columbus, was the only spectator seriously injured.

The section of stand, in which about sixty persons were seated, collapsed as many stood and shouted at the finish of the fourth race, and hurled many women visitors, Ladies' Day guests of the management, to the ground.

Mrs. Wright was released from custody, after being held several hours.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 16.—Miss Gladys Roy, 25-year-old aviatrix, of Minneapolis, was dead here today, a victim of injuries suffered late Monday, when she stepped into the path of the propeller of her plane at Watson Field, where she was taking part in the filming of a moving picture.

The film, which was to include Miss Evelyn Wilgus, of Russell Point, recently chosen to represent Ohio in the Atlantic City bathing beauty contest, was near completion when Miss Roy, after starting her engine, unconsciously walked into the propeller, which struck her twice on the head. She lived but two hours after the accident.

HOLD SUSPECT WHEN WOMAN FOUND SLAIN

GALLOPLIS, O., Aug. 16.—E. J. Costello, 25, of Huntington, W. Va., and Ashland, Ky., is being held in the county jail here, while Galia County authorities attempted to solve the mystery surrounding the strangulation and death of Mrs. William Buck, 37, of Grims Landing, W. Va., early Monday. No charges have been filed against Costello, though federal authorities have been asked to investigate in anticipation of filing charges of violating the Mann act, against Costello.

According to Costello's story, he with Mrs. Buck, and the latter's sister Mrs. L. A. Wright, registered at a hotel here Sunday night. Mrs. Buck occupied a room by herself, while Costello and Mrs. Wright occupied an adjoining room. Mrs. Buck's room was entered during the night. She was found dead, when attempts were made to awaken her Monday.

Mrs. Wright was released from custody, after being held several hours.

AVIATRIX KILLED WHEN MAKING MOVIE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 16.—Miss Gladys Roy, 25-year-old aviatrix, of Minneapolis, was dead here today, a victim of injuries suffered late Monday, when she stepped into the path of the propeller of her plane at Watson Field, where she was taking part in the filming of a moving picture.

"I AM THE LAW!" POSTERED BY C. C. STEPHENSON; KLAN IN INDIANA

MISS MADGE OBERHOLTZER, TOP, FOR WHOM DEATH OF Indiana's present political drama, brought on by D. C. Stephenson, a life prisoner, who once said he was the law in the state. The story, obtained by a star Central Press writer, states vividly and without bias or prejudice the facts in this unique rise and fall of this self-termed conqueror of a commonwealth.

(This is the second installment of the story of the Klan he attracted thousands. Some came because of hate, some for protection, others for curiosity. It mattered not to Stephenson. He wanted a large organization for the power it represented and the remuneration involved. You see, he received a percentage on each new member.

What Klan Official Says

"You probably recall we had a great many parades and demonstrations with 'Steve' as the dragon, participated in by thousands of robed Klansmen. There was a reason! The robes served to make an impression on all who saw them, but it is more significant to remember that 'Steve' made several dollars on every robe sold. Understand his enthusiasm for parades!"

All robes were supposed to be purchased from the imperial factory in Atlanta, Ga., but Stephenson built his own factory, sold better than a million sheets for $5 apiece, and acquired a personal fortune.

Meanwhile he quarreled constantly with the powers of the Klan at Atlanta, headed by Hiram Evans, imperial wizard. "Steve," headstrong, imperious, would brook interference from no one and trouble was certain.

But the Klan broke with him, later on, and he was not connected with it when he got into trouble.

Some explain his first Klan connections by saying he is a lieutenant of the late Mayor Benjamin Bosse, of Evansville, state Democratic chairman, who not only sought reelection as mayor of largest city in the southern part of the state, but was a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination as well. Bosse regained the mayor's office, but so over-exerted himself in his various campaigns he died before the state convention was held.

According to the version Stephenson had thought of carrying Bosse to victory with Klan aid, but both Klan and anti-Klan forces have denied this. Stephenson probably was friendly with Bosse in a business way, as Bosse had real money and Stephenson was the coal business in Evansville.

Stephenson's beginning in Hoosier politics wasn't auspicious. He failed to obtain the Democratic congressional nomination in primaries in the Evansville district.

His Aim for Power

Thereafter, he sought for his Klan organization, and subsequently his boast that he ruled the Republican party in power in Indiana. And then came his "I am the law in Indiana!"

Even as he said that, however, Klan aid was denounced by him. And a man who has been throughout the state was declaring against him.

From 1921 to 1923 Stephenson had devoted his energies to building up the Klan, records show. A born organizer, he rose rapidly, until on July 4, 1923, he was made grand dragon at Kokomo.

His Dramatic Arrival

Just as the meeting was called to order, "Steve" or the "Old Man," as he now was designated in a friendly manner, alive to the psychology of dramatic situations, arrived in an airplane. He descended amid cheers and the waving of flags.

During the next three months, spurred on by a desire to be the dominating political power in the state, C. C. Stephenson recruited a quarter of a million members for the Klan in Indiana, and an national organizer he had jurisdiction over twenty-one states.

Klan Official Disapproves Methods

Present officials of the Klan will tell you that they don't exactly like Stephenson's policies as a Klan head in high regard.

One high Klan officer remarked the other day to the writer in his "Steve" who put the robes on the Klansmen, and the organized parades, he said, were anything but the principles for which the Klan stood. All that concerned him was the building of a powerful political organization.

Marriage At Parsonage Unites Young Couple

Miss Mildred Bankerd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Bankerd, of Detroit St., and Mr. Robert D. Denny, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Denny, North Lewisburg, O., were united in marriage Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the First Reformed Church parsonage, the Rev. David A. Sellers officiating. The single ring ceremony was performed before a company of close friends and relatives of the couple. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hanna, Urbana.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS VIRGINIAN GATHERING

The tenth annual reunion of the Greene County Virginians' Association held Sunday at Coy's Grove, near Shoup's Station, was attended by 160 native Virginians, families and friends. Thirteen guests held down the attendance but failed to dampen the spirit of the gathering. The big event of the day was the basket dinner, but the free lemonade and prize contests ran close seconds. Prize events consisted of: peanut race for women; fat women's thirty-three yard dash; three-legged race; 100 yd. dash; peanut scramble; tug-of-war and odd fiddlers' contest.

Mr. John W. Weade, Washington, C. H., delivered an interesting address and his daughter, Ruth, gave a recitation. Officers elected for the coming year were: president, Mr. H. M. Swindler; vice president, Mr. John Harlow; secretary-treasurer, Miss Helen Camden.

The eleventh annual reunion will be held the second Sunday in August, 1928, some place near Xenia not yet selected. Anyone desiring to receive a notification card in advance of the next reunion should communicate with Sidney Muterspaugh, N. Miami Ave., Xenia, O.

LAWN FESTIVAL AT U. B. CHURCH THURSDAY

The men and boys of the United Brethren Church will entertain the women and girls on the church lawn Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The men were defeated by the women in a two months' "on-time" attendance contest.

At this time, all the new members of the Sunday School that have been enrolled in the last few months will be given a reception. All members of Xenia U. B. Sunday School are requested to be present Thursday evening for the affair and enjoy the program and stunts arranged by the hosts. In case of inclement weather, the affair will be held in the spacious rooms of the dormitory.

VISITORS ENTERTAINED AT COUNTRY CLUB PARTY

Several out-of-town guests were entertained at the weekly golf luncheon at the Country Club Monday. Private parties were entertained by Mrs. Eva Smart, Mrs. Lawrence Shields, Mrs. H. C. Reinstatement of eight employees of the combined normal and industrial department of Wilberforce University dismissed by the board of trustees was demanded in Columbus Monday by the state board of control.

The control board unanimously passed a resolution agreeing not to approve the appropriation of $1,000,000 for the department for the next eighteen months until the eight discharged employees are again placed on the payroll.

Failure to approve the appropriations will tie up the department's pay roll and operating expenses and prevent it from functioning until the money is properly allowed. With this approval based entirely on reinstatement of the discharged men, the control board believes it will be able to force the hand of the trustees.

The eight discharged employees, given a hearing before the con-

DAYTON AUTOISTS ESCAPE HURTS AS CAR GOES OVER EMBANKMENT

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Ferree, and their eighteen-year-old daughter, of Dayton, escaped with minor injuries when the Buick sedan driven by Mr. Ferree, leaped the sidewalk, and dropped eight feet over an embankment into a garden at an early hour of the morning.

Miss Ferree's back was slightly hurt. Her parents were uninjured. The Buick car was traveling east at a fast rate of speed, it is said. Ferree said that he swerved the car sharply to the right to avoid striking a bread truck which drove out of Evans Ave. into Main Street. His right front wheel hooked into the left front wheel of a touring car belonging to William Crump, which had just been backed out of a driveway at the Crump home, by a twelve-year-old boy. The wheel was torn from the Crump car and the sedan was turned, thrown over the sidewalk, and down the embankment.

The car alighted on its wheels in the garden, but tore down thirty feet of picket fencing in its drop. It was driven out to the street on its own power, but was taken to a garage for repairs to a damaged fender, running board and axle. The Ferrees expect to continue their journey to Virginia, where they were going to spend Mr. Ferree's vacation, later in the day when their car is placed in repair.

The driver of the Dayton bread truck which Ferree blamed for the accident, was not learned, the truck having left the scene immediately. The boy driver of the Crump car said that his machine was not moving when the accident occurred. He had just backed the car out of the driveway, and was shifting gears getting ready to drive ahead when the collision took place. The boy was not hurt.

The fifty protesters against the assessment prepared by County Surveyor W. J. Davis, allege that without notifying them, the county commissioners, on direction of the state highway department, changed specifications of the proposed road, making the material to be used concrete instead of water bound macadam, in order to get the federal aid, which would be refused unless a hard surfaced road was to be constructed. This change in material increased the cost of construction, it is set out.

They also allege that no assessment for the improvement of the state highway department, made against the Springfield and Xenia Traction Company, whose right of way for part of the distance passes between the roadway and farms assessed.

Approximately ten miles of concrete roadway were constructed in three sections. The total cost was about $248,517.66. Section No. 1 extended from the Xenia corporation line to the Fairfield Pike. Its total cost was about $72,054.54, divided as follows: state's share, $36,027.28; county's share, $18,405.64; Xenia Twp.'s share, $10,575.05; share of abutting property owners' $7,048.72.

Section No. 2, extending from the Fairfield Pike to Yellow Springs corporation line; total cost $137,130.68, divided as follows: share of state, $67,919.54; share of county, $37,313.47; share of Xenia Twp., $11,040.11; share of Miami Twp., $8,998.49; share of abutting property owners in Xenia Twp., $7,260.08; share of abutting property owners in Miami Twp., $5,398.99.

Section No. 3, extending from north corporation line of Yellow Springs to the Clark County line; cost $38,611.72, divided as follows: share of state, $17,490.71; share of county, $12,314.62; share of Miami Twp., $5,716.26; share of abutting property owners, $3,810.35. The total assessment against property owners is approximately $23,615.64. Among the largest property owners objecting to the assessment is the Hercules Powder Co.

Waynesville is included in the territory of the Greene County club, which operates as far as Lebanon.

The eight discharged employees, given a hearing before the con-quency of which the earth down in the southwest now is pouring wealth into his pockets at the rate of $30,000 a week or some such incredible sum. The young man turned his attention to picture production, as a means of spending his wealth. His first picture was the Marshall Neelan production called "Everybody's Acting," released last fall by Paramount. The backer found profit from his picture. And now "Topsy and Eva" looks so good that United Artists is opening it at an admission price of $2, top. To him that hath, one may read, it shall be given.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The summer of Broadway's discontent has passed, so far as the moving pictures are concerned. The middle of August sees the new season getting under way. The theaters are opening up with the big super-productions which are to welcome the returned vacationist back to his normal schedule of work and play.

Leading off in importance among films crashing the doors of the autumn season is Paramount's great aviation epic, "Wings." After several tentative announcements of opening night the date was set for August 12, regardless of superstition because that happened to be Friday.

First National set its initial big fall production, "The Patent Leather Kid," with Richard Barthelmess for about the same date. The picture is the most important of that star's recent releases, and previewers came from seeing it with high hopes that it would turn Barthelmess luck from its course among stories which were below his best.

The Duncan sisters, who played their "Topsy and Eva" from coast to coast for a cumulative time record almost equal to "Abie's Irish Rose," have made the old show in to a picture now, and United Artists is releasing it. The Broadway opening came a week earlier than "Wings." The sisters appear in person with their film.

"Topsy and Eva," I understand, was produced with the backing of Howard Hughes, a nephew of Rupert Hughes, the author. Howard Hughes had the good judgment to invest in oil land at the right time and at the right price, in consequence of which the earth down in the southwest now is pouring wealth into his pockets at the rate of $30,000 a week or some such incredible sum. The young man turned his attention to picture production, as a means of spending his wealth. His first picture was the Marshall Neelan production called "Everybody's Acting," released last fall by Paramount. The backer found profit from his picture. And now "Topsy and Eva" looks so good that United Artists is opening it at an admission price of $2, top. To him that hath, one may read, it shall be given.

BIBLE THOUGHT

GOD'S CHILDREN.—Blessed is the man whom Thou chastenest, O Lord, and teachest him out of Thy law. Psalm 94:12

FUNNY BUT SERIOUS

One of the amusing situations brought about by the unexpected announcement of President Coolidge that he would not be a candidate for another term is the sudden bobbing up of "Big Bill" Thompson, Mayor of Chicago, as a willin' Barkis for White House honors. Probably nobody else sees any qualifications in "Big Bill" for the exalted post once held by Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and other great men; but what of that? His ambition may have aims other than those of purely personal advancement.

A curious feature of the muddle created by Mr. Coolidge's withdrawal is that of the three candidates most prominently named for the Republican nomination, Messrs. Hoover, Dawes and Lowden, the two last hail from Illinois, which is also the habitat of Chicago's mayor. Now it happens that as a particularly practical politician, and one identified with the Small faction of Illinois Republicans, "Big Bill" has no use for statesmen of the Lowden and Dawes type, who deal in ideas rather than in votes. As boss of the G. O. P. machine in Chicago Thompson will control the selection of national convention delegates from that city, and it can easily be seen that if he wishes to be acclaimed as the favorite son of the Sucker state he and his political partner, Governor Small, can easily bring that about. The rest of the country may not enthuse over the idea, but if he can put the quietus on the Dawes and Lowden candidacies, so far as their own state is concerned, he will doubtless be satisfied.

MRS. COOLIDGE HAS SOME SAY

Mrs. Coolidge is said to have counseled President Coolidge to retire from his office at the close of his present term. One can well see why she would feel that he would be wise not to undertake this tremendous strain for four years more.

And it must be a most onerous burden to be a president's wife. People who have seen Mrs. Coolidge recently think her face shows the strain of it. She, too, must carry on her shoulders the cares of a nation. She must act as a kind of social guide to the president, and help him over the many difficult places where a woman's tact and instinct are so helpful.

Mrs. Coolidge need not consider her own personal burden in asking the president to retire. She would be game to stand it if he could. But a woman in her position considers something beside personal and political ambition. The life and health of her husband are given to her keeping, and she feels that they have a right to be protected.

"SAFETY CONSCIOUSNESS"

To check the rapid growth of fires and industrial accidents, people must get the safety habit, or develop a "safety consciousness." Safety, like other things, is largely a matter of habit not only in industrial life but in all forms of activity.

The human element is the greatest single factor in fire and accident prevention. Safety engineering has gone far in recent years in the direction of mechanical safe-guarding, but no matter how great the factor of safety may be, mechanically considered, it can be neutralized if the machine or property is not properly handled. No one can do this for the worker, and his own self-interest should prompt him to develop a safety consciousness.

The Way of the World

MOLECULES

Fitzhugh Green, eminent scientist, says that if every molecule of starch in Dad's collar were a glass bead they would make a necklace 100,000 miles long—enough to stretch four times around the earth. Starch is made of sunlight and the gases of the air. Every creature exhales carbon dioxide and plants inhale it. This gas is converted into sugar, and sugar condensed into starch. Masses of starch are found in seeds and roots. Nothing is indestructible. Everything changes.

How about the soul—which cannot be reduced to molecules?

THINK ABOUT ELECTIONS

There will be many elections in this country this fall. There will be some primary elections this summer. Elections are important for two reasons. First, by means of them we have a chance to get better officers in high places. In the second place, elections make us think about our government, our democracy. Anything that makes us think about that is important.

Think about election. Think about candidates. Exercise your privilege to vote—and exercise your mind by thinking.

SWEET, in the evening, is my well-earned rest.

The easy armchair and the open book, The sleepy kitten in my lap's warm nest— My apron hanging idly from my hook.

Pleasant, to look about the house and see No special task that must be done just yet. The dishes washed and put away, I'm free Kitchens and pans, this evening, to forget.

Grateful the peace and calm, when all the day With comings and goings and much sound was filled.

Traffic and people on their noisy way The world, like me, is weary and is stilled.

Nodding at last, the little drowsy heads I hear the little play-worn, lagging feet Trudging upstairs to find the cool clean beds—

Sound dear to me, and in the evening, sweet.

Household Hints

MENU HINT
Let us try jellied meat roll for dinner the next hot day. It must be made the day before using of very early in the morning. Here is an excellent recipe. Creamed potatoes are always nice to serve with this kind of a meal, as they constitute the one hot dish and are quickly and easily prepared.

Jellied Meat Roll
Creamed Potatoes Pickled Beets
Buttered New Carrots
Huckleberry Tarts
Tea or Coffee

TODAY'S RECIPES
Try Jellied Meat Roll—One and one-half pounds chopped meat, salt and pepper to taste, two teaspoons chopped onion, one-half cup olives chopped, two eggs, six tablespoons milk, two tablespoons flour, two hard cooked eggs. Mix together all ingredients except hard cooked eggs. Place half the mixture in loaf pan, set the hard cooked eggs in it, end to end, and pile the remaining mixture on top; place pan in another half full of water and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 45 minutes.

One can stewed and strained tomatoes, salt to taste, two tablespoons ketchup, one-fourth cup cold water, one-half teaspoon allspice, one bay leaf, one-eighth teaspoon pepper. To tomatoes, add salt and seasonings, and the gelatin, which has been soaked in cold water for five minutes. Have tomatoes boiling hot. Pour over sliced meat loaf and place in refrigerator until firm.

Huckleberry Tarts—Line a deep pie dish with plain paste. Turn cup upside down in the middle. Fill around it with huckleberries. Add sugar to taste. Lay a wide strip of plain paste around the edge of the dish. Cover and press the edges firmly together with a pastry jagger. Bake in hot oven twenty-five minutes and serve with powdered sugar sprinkled thickly on top. All juicy fruits are excellent cooked in the same way.

SUGGESTIONS
Important Trifles.
Keep the paraffin in a small, covered lipped saucer or individual teapot so it can be quickly melted and easily poured.

If the meat is exceptionally tough, rub baking soda into it; let it stand several hours and wash it well before cooking.

When household linens wear out in the hemstitched hems, join the linen to the hem with a novelty braid. It doubles the life of the article and looks well.

CRYSTALLIZED APPLES
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)
Six apples, two cups sugar, one and one-half cups water, one-half lemon, whipped cream. Make a syrup of the sugar and water, slice the lemon very thin into it. Cook fifteen minutes. Have the apples of good quality and even size. Pare and core, cook carefully in the syrup five or ten minutes, watching them that they do not break. Arrange in a warm dish, pour remaining syrup over. When cold fill centers with chopped nuts or anything desired. Garnish with whipped cream and the lemon slices.

One should keep kitchen scissors for cutting raisins and figs, lettuce, parsley and so on.

Kellygrams

BY FRED KEC

EVEN LOAFERS ARE USEFUL
A friend of mine, intending to make a hiking trip through England a year or two ago, took only old clothes with him, and looked like a laborer when he appeared before the British immigration officers.

They appeared somewhat excited, for calm British, and did not want to let him enter.

But they became much more hospitable when he assured them that he was there only for sight-seeing and not to seek work.

Thousands of English laborers were already out of work and one more man to compete with them for such jobs as could be found, would add to their troubles. But a man having no purpose except to wander about and spend his money, was welcome.

All of which goes to show that no virtue is ever quite 100 per cent. Every book of economics, as well as every book of wise maxims, not only enjoins men to win their bread by sweat of the brow, but declares the loafer. Whoever fails to contribute his share of work in any community is a menace, a parasite, a bad egg.

But as the world becomes better organized, we keep hearing talk of shorter hours, not to give men more time to idle, but that there may be enough work to go around. If a man can stumble upon a gold mine or is naturally so lazy and trifling that he is content to make his living by writing little pieces for newspapers instead of engaging in useful work, he at least has the satisfaction of knowing that he is not depriving some worthy toiler of a job.

The collapse of the Florida boom a while ago was not due to the presence of too many rich idlers, but because too many people who went to Florida expected to make a living there. There weren't enough jobs.

I have scant grasp of economic principles, but somehow I have a sneaking notion that perhaps those of us who were born with a disinclination for arduous effort are not as black as we have been painted.

Gray Hair
Gray hair is apparently a normal change with advancing years. Those who are gray prematurely usually inherit this characteristic.

Passing causes for grayness are chronic debilitating diseases, prolonged worry and mental strain, neuralgia of the face and head, local injuries and diseases of the scalp. When the grayness is due to some such passing cause, the process may stop after the cause is removed.

Dyeing the hair is going out of practice because most hair dyes are made from minerals which may be absorbed by the system and cause a slow poisoning. The vegetable dyes, such as extract of nut gall, oak or hemlock bark, black walnut, sage, etc., are not so apt to poison.

Effect of Nutrition
Now, as for the effect of the general nutrition on the hair: While you often find heavy hair on those who apparently are not normally nourished (are either too fat or too thin), we can perhaps consider these favored persons as having inherited extra strong and vigorous hair, with perhaps, with perhaps, larger and more vigorous blood vessels in the scalp. We know, however, that in any debilitating disease the hair is apt to fall out.

It is found in nutrition laboratories that diet has a decided effect on the hair of the animal used for experimental purposes. On an unbalanced diet, or an insufficient one—especially one lacking in vitamins and mineral matter—the fur becomes rough and sparse. There is no doubt that the hair on a human being is also apt to suffer, as do other structures of the body, from improper diet.

TULSA ORGANIZES LONGWORTH BOOM

TULSA Okla., Aug. 16.—The first "boom" in the country for Nicholas J. Longworth, speaker of the house, for chief executive of the United States, has been launched in Tulsa.

Col. Clarence B. Douglas is president of the organization which is to be known as Longworth Legion No. 1.

"I hope to make the Longworth Legion national in scope," said Col. Douglas. "Last spring in Washington, I discussed the plan with the speaker, who told me he preferred that nothing be done until Mr. Coolidge made known his stand."

DANDRUFF, BALDNESS AND GRAYING HAIR

Forms of Dandruff

There are two general forms of dandruff; the simple, or dry, form (trichastis simplex capitis), and a more serious form, the oily (pityriasis steatidis). If the simple form is not cured, it may go on to the more serious or oily form.

The order of the treatment for both types of dandruff is: first, to remove the scales; second, to destroy the germs; third, to bring the scalp to its normal condition. The removal of the scales I outlined for you yesterday. Briefly, it is to scrub the scalp with a pair of stiff, clean brushes, shake out the loose dandruff with your fingers, and brush some more, then massage the scalp also. A fine comb may be used first, if it is used gently enough not to injure the scalp.

After the removal of the scales comes the washing. The frequency of the washing will depend upon the stage of the disease, but may demand a daily shampoo, and then, later, once a week, or once every two weeks, will be sufficient.

Any mild soap may be used for the shampoo. If you cannot have soft or distilled water, a little lemon juice or vinegar in the last cup of rinsing water will keep the hair from being sticky.

For the oily form of dandruff, after the hair has dried, medication may be applied with the fingers to the scalp (not the hair). It should be used daily for many days. After the disease is controlled, then once a week or less will probably be often enough if the daily care is kept up.

Jackson recommends a three per cent solution of resorcin in alcohol for medication in the oily form of dandruff. A resorcin is apt to give a rusty stain to gray hair, three per cent of salicylic acid can be used instead of the resorcin.

Baldness

One of my textbooks on skin diseases states that eighty per cent of baldness of all sorts is due to dandruff, so you can see that the prevention of dandruff means the prevention of baldness in a large majority of cases. Good massage of the scalp, twice daily, five to ten minutes at a time, if persistently kept up for months, will revive the hair roots if not dead. I personally know two men, and both over fifty, who have grown a lot of new hair by this method.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

YOUNG WOES
Too many of us who are past our youth, or frankly, middle-aged, it would seem occasional that the world has no use for persons over thirty. That youth is the one thing the world needs and for the young—and them only—it is a very charming place.

The letters that come to my desk, however, do not bear this out. Young people are lonely, they are unhappy in their love affairs, they have made mistakes that threaten to spoil their lives. Following are two letters from young girls whose troubles seem real to them, although we may smile a bit at them:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young girl 21 years of age and considered very pretty. I am a blonde with gold hair, blue eyes, nice complexion. Here is my trouble: My mother is dead. I have had four proposals. Two of the young men I didn't care for and the other two I did. The last one I was to have married, but he died. I am now ready for my home when he started going out with other girls. I am always disappointed when I am in love. Most men of today are not worthy of a good, decent girl. Why is it then always say so many insulting things to me? This is what they say: 'Oh, blondes are deceiving; I wouldn't trust a blonde,' etc. Is it because when I love a man I couldn't be untrue, and they cheat me? I am getting so I don't trust any man."

DISAPPOINTED BLONDE
I did not have room for all your

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl of 16 and have company. I go with a very nice boy, but I don't like any of them. I really was in love once, or thought I was, but the boy didn't prove worthy. I don't like any of the boys, and am really never happy while with them. Much rather be with a girl friend. How can I conquer that feeling and meet the right fellow? I really would like a home of my own and a good husband some day."

FASHION
It is somewhat strange to most young women, that Florenz Ziegfeld, who is supposed to be the best judge of attractive young women in the world should lay more stress on personality than on mere beauty.

The greatest beauty market in the world is Hollywood, where you can see any day on the streets or in the restaurants, hundreds of exquisitely lovely young girls; but after a glance one would not remark upon seeing them. "That is the beautiful girl I saw here yesterday."

One of the crowd you can pick a dozen or so, who stick in your memory. These are the ones who stand out from the rest.

Over there is a girl with short, tousled hair and brown eyes. She is not particularly pretty—some would not even call her good looking, and yet, with her gladness personality, she is one of the most popular young women on the screen.

There is no use of making a fetish of beauty, for history tells us that the women who have been loved most have not been the most beautiful.

One thing every woman, old and young, must remember, if she would be called beautiful from sixteen to sixty, and that is to follow the fashions in beauty. Don't raise your eyebrows, for there are fashions in beauty quite as much as there are fashions in gowns, hats, or shoes.

Lips that are artificially scarlet

One of the first rules that a woman who would be beautiful from youth to age is to "march with her regiment" and keep perfectly and scrupulously clean.

"I never wash my face unless I wash my whole body," said the best groomed woman I know. I found out that she took always one and sometimes two thorough baths a day.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Rain begins to pour down on the city in great angry sheets. And the city is always receiving such deluge of confidences from waiters, taxi drivers, bus conductors, newsboys, soda jerkers and ushers. The other night I was standing in the foyer of the Rivoli at the opening of the Duncan sisters' new film, "Topsy and Eva." The young man who stood at the door, directing those who entered, was listening suddenly to short, terse words from the head usher. Evidently he was being bawled out. When the superior left the lad cursed under his breath furiously. Three people entered.

"Seats this way, please," he murmured, with cultured expression, in dulcet tones.

Then he turned to me. "Head usher," he sniffed. "If he's a head usher, I'm a doorman."

And the thing that troubles me is that I still do not know whether the position of doorman is a lofty or a servile one, in the code of the movie usher.

SALLY'S SALLIES

I watched a monkey playing in the Variety pet shop on West 49th St. Someone had dropped bits of a banana into the dog pen. The monkey would sit on the rail above, then, watching his chance, slip quickly down and snatch a bit of banana. The dogs would turn and pursue him. With one leap, he was up again on the rail, grinning at the growing mob below, and devouring the tid-bit.

Perhaps it is because I seldom

Most radio announcers are bachelors. That's because so few women will stand for a man who can talk to her when she can't answer back.

PLANS FOR COMMUNITY SUPPER OUTLINED AT MEETING MONDAY

The entire city having a meal together and then joining in one big after supper frolic and jollification—this is the plan that took definite shape at the meeting of various women's committees for the Community celebration, Monday afternoon at City Hall.

Mrs. Charles Keble, chairman, called on the committee chairmen present for reports in regard to the serving of the cafeteria supper which is to be the opening feature of the evening's program at Shawnee Park, Monday evening, August 22. The reports showed that all of the churches of the city are planning to join in providing food for the huge meal and in attending to the details of serving.

Mrs. Marshall Wolf and Mrs. Carl Marshall presented a suggested bill of fare that met with the approval of all the women present. The supper will be served cafeteria style at long tables and each may choose whatever is desired from the menu presented. The prices will be as low or lower than restaurant prices so that every one is assured of a generous return for every cent invested in the meal. The reasonable prices will make it possible for the whole family to take supper at the park. The various lodges and clubs of the city will have charge of different parts of the "cafeteria" such as the ice cream, watermelon, candy, etc. The reports presented Tuesday assured a hearty response from the women of the city and all attending the supper will be served with delicious home cooked food.

BLACK HOPE LOOMS AS NEGRO DEFEATS MALONEY IN FIRST

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—Another dark cloud loomed on the heavyweight title horizon today as a result of the sensational one-round knockout of Jim Maloney by George Godfrey, giant Lehighville, Penna., negro, in Shibe Park last night. Godfrey's sensational finish of the Bostonian in less than a minute of actual fighting stamps him as a contender for Gene Tunney's crown.

Towering six feet four, head and shoulders above the Bostonian, and boxing with the rapidity of a lightweight, Godfrey never gave Maloney a chance to get started. Spraying from their corners with the changing of the opening gong, the men exchanged lefts and rights without any damage. A clinch followed. Then Maloney undertook to force the fighting despite Godfrey's weight advantage of thirty-one pounds. The negro, however, refused to break ground and started wading in. Two left hooks to the body and jaw and a right cross draped Maloney over the ropes with the negro on top of him.

Untangling himself from the ropes, Godfrey sprang back to the center of the ring and the rebound of the ropes hurled Maloney face forward to the floor. There he lay motionless, while Referee Tommy Rolly counted him out. The knockout blow, a left hook to the jaw, lifted Maloney almost a foot from the floor, and left the 150-pound fans amazed at the terrific hitting power of the huge negro.

CENTRAL CINCHES PLACE BY FORFEIT

Central High clinched second place in Division A of the Xenia Playground Association League by its forfeit victory over the Rotary Club when the latter team failed to appear for its scheduled game Monday.

By this win Central may yet come out in a tie for first place if the Junior Business Men lose one of their three remaining games and may actually win the top position if the league leaders should drop two.

The remaining games of the week find Division A teams playing off postponed contests of an earlier date while all of the Division B clubs finish their regular schedules.

Tuesday night the Firemen engage the Lang Chevrolet Co. in an important Division B game.

ESTRIDGE NOT HELD IN CINCINNATI; IS VICTIM OF MISTAKE

James Estridge, 44 Orchard St., is not under arrest in Cincinnati with George Rogers, Xenia who is held for questioning in connection with the Bryan robbery and assault, it was announced by police Tuesday.

The name of Estridge was confused with that of Virgil Bell, 720 E. Church St., this city, by Cincinnati officers who visited here Sunday, police say. Bell is still held in Cincinnati, charged, it is said, with carrying concealed weapons and pointing firearms. He, instead of James Estridge was arrested in Cincinnati early Sunday morning with Rogers, who later confessed, according to police, that he drove a car for two men who are alleged to have committed the Bryan robbery and assault. He denied knowledge of the actual crime, however.

James Estridge, his brother, Cornelius and Russell Galloway, all of Xenia, were arrested by Cincinnati officers here Sunday morning and taken to Cincinnati for questioning, but all were released when they cleared themselves of suspicion and were permitted to return to Xenia.

They were questioned because they had made frequent trips to Cincinnati and Newport recently, and had been there in the company of Rogers. James Estridge who is at his home here, said that he, his brother and Russell Galloway had been making trips to Newport to call on girl friends.

The funeral services of George A. Carlisle were held Friday afternoon at the residence of his son, Frank Carlisle, on Whiteman St. Interment in Glen Forest Cemetery. Mr. Carlisle was 87 and had lived in this place all his life with the exception of a few years spent in Springfield. He is survived by one son, Frank, one brother, Towne Carlisle, of this city and a sister, Mrs. M. Confer, of Selma, Kansas.

Mr. C. H. Ellis received word last week of the death of his aunt, Mrs. Mary Tucker, of Jacksonville, Florida. Mrs. Tucker formerly lived here and was librarian of the Public Library for many years.

The W. C. T. U. will hold an all-day meeting with picnic dinner at the home of Mrs. O. C. Ralston, in Springfield, Tuesday. The annual election of officers will be held.

The Garlough family reunion was held at B. F. Garlough's new Pithin, Friday. There were about seventy-five present. Those from here who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Garlough and son, Willis, Mr. and Mrs. Torrence Garlough and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Garlough and Miss Mabel Strong.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Howell spent the past week in Muncie, Ind., attending the Friends conference.

Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson and little son, Jimmy, who have been visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Johnson left Friday for their home in Garnett, Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Currey left Thursday for a motor trip through West Virginia and Kentucky.

The Poor Rich Boy

The boy who has never had the spur of necessity, the broadening and strengthening influence of democratic contact, whose higher aspirations have been chilled and whose better instincts and purposes have been debauched by the indulgences of idleness and extravagance.

If you have been born in poor or moderate circumstances, do not envy, but rather pity him, because of his handicap. "Three generations from shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves"—you may be going up while he is coming down—you may have attained fortune and distinguished citizenship when he can only look back upon a life that has been dawdled away in luxury and idleness.

No reason for you to be discouraged in this land of plenty. Be diligent and frugal—save your money and both in getting and keeping it, you may find pleasure and attain success.

Peter's Adventures

A MEDDLER MISUNDERSTOOD

At this second around a curve came the Bees, laden with honey and flying low because the breeze was strong. They were in so much of a hurry that they didn't see Hoppy at all—never even dreamed that he was there. That fellow drew himself up to his full height and waited. Then, as the Wise little Fluff was the first to meet her fate, and one after another of her sisters were caught upon Hoppy's swift moving tongue. For a moment Peter was too horrified to speak. Then he gave a shrill cry, waved his arms frantically above his head and rushed straight towards the on-flying Bees. "I like Toad, but I can't let him harm all these cheery little workers. I shall have to save them," thought he.

"Shoo! Fly high! The bold brigand will catch you if you don't watch out!" yelled the boy, as loudly as he could.

At first sight of the small Two-Legs dashing so unexpectedly at them the Bees—and Bees are very quick tempered folks and liable to get mad at almost nothing at all—became cross and began to buzz excitedly. They quite misunderstood the friendly meddler.

"Who is this Two-Legs that screams at us so shrilly? What business is it of his where and how we fly, we'd like to know! Impudent fellow! We'll teach him to keep his place. No Human can tell us what to do when we are in the open. Come on, sisters! Let's surround him!"

Hoppy chuckled, and so loudly that even above the buzzing of the Bees the boy could plainly hear him.

"Tee hee! There's gratitude! Try to warn the silly flyers of their danger and get stung for your pains! I hope you do! It will serve you right, boy, for interfering in my affairs!"

Next—"Saved in Spite of Themselves."

"SHOO! FLY HIGH! THE BOLD BRIGAND WILL CATCH YOU IF YOU DON'T WATCH OUT!"

head of the flying column reached him his little tongue played like lightning. It ran out empty, but alas, when it was returned to his wide-open mouth it carried a busy bee. The bold brigand was at his cruel work again.

Sally's Shoulders

by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL" ETC.

He was on his knees, packing a suitcase.

READ THIS FIRST:

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has not lived with her mother for years. The family consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAU and MILLIE, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework for her mornings and office work for MR. PEEVEY afternoons.

In the flat below the Jeromes lives TED SLOAN, who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's in the Nye-Naylor building. Nye hires Millie as his secretary and becomes blindly infatuated with her. Millie likes him but admits that she prefers a blond salesman named DAVIDSON, and she tries to get him a job with Nye. Davidson becomes smitten with Sally, who persuades him to keep away from the office.

Beau and Millie give so little towards the upkeep of the house that Sally often has to borrow from her AUNT EMILY JEROME, who wants her to go into the restaurant business with her when she turns her country house into a wayside inn. Beau gets some money from Ted Sloan by bad checks, and Sally borrows the money to pay him from Mr. Peevey. Beau goes to elope with MABEL WILMOT, and Sally starts paying off the debts. He and Mabel use Mrs. Jerome's wedding present of some money to buy a second-hand car and rent a furnished flat.

Millie moves into Beau's old room to prevent his ever coming home with Mabel. But while she is in the hospital following an operation, Beau and Mabel return to the flat because they can't support a home of their own. Mr. Jerome comes home because of Millie's illness, but does not stay long, and leaves just as Beau and Mabel move in. Sally, who is working for John Nye part time, during Millie's illness, predicts that there will be fireworks when Millie discovers that they are living at home again, and have put her things out of her room to have it themselves.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER XXXVIII
MILLIE came home from the hospital on the first Sunday in November. It was a chilly day, full of high winds and driving rain. At 10 o'clock John Nye telephoned that he was going to bring her home in his closed car and wanted to know if Mrs. Jerome would like to drive with him to the hospital.

"I surely would love to go, Mr. Nye," twittered Mrs. Jerome, smiling and nodding into the telephone as if he could see her face from his end of the wire. "I'll go and get dressed right away!"

She lumbered into her bedroom. "I'll say she's getting dressed!" declared Mabel, the disrespectful one, 10 minutes later. "She's put on a hug-me-tight and a silk muffler and a short coat and a long coat over her dress! She's taking a train out for a hike. What do you call the ones who carry their whole wardrobe on their backs—bundle stiffs? Well, she looks just like a bundle stiff!"

She began to giggle, and Beau laughed with her from the davenport where he was stretched out, reading and smoking.

"Mother suffers from the cold, Mabel," Sally said quietly, as she put another shovelful of canned coal in the grate. "I wouldn't try to be funny at mother's expense if I were you."

Mabel let out another wild giggle. "That's where the old girl's got it on all of us! She's funny without trying to be!"

Sally set her lips and went on brushing up the ashes around the glowing grate.

She was very tired of having Mabel around the house. She was sick to death, she told herself, of the sound of Mabel's silly little laugh. Disgusted with Mabel because of the way she made fun of Mrs. Jerome. Tired of picking up after Mabel, who seemed to think that Sally was her body-servant just because she was living in the same flat with her.

Mabel had a nasty little way of ordering her about. "Come here, Sally, and hook up my dress!" she would call; or, "Sally, it's 8 o'clock. Put my coffee on the table!" "But I can stand all that, if only she and Beau pay their board," Sally had been telling herself all week.

And now it was Sunday—and the board money, which should have been paid into her hand the night before, had not been paid. Nor had either Beau or Mabel said a single word about it.

So Sally was worried, as she went from room to room, dusting mahogany surfaces, watering the plants, setting the dining room table. "Put on an extra plate today, Sally. I'll ask Mr. Nye to have dinner with us when he brings Millie home," Mrs. Jerome said breathlessly as she passed through the room when John Nye came for her.

Standing at the front bay-window, hidden by the curtains, Sally watched him help her mother into his big closed automobile.

"I'll never care for any man but him," she told herself as she stood there, plaiting the thin starched muslin between her small fingers.

And yet, she reasoned, women did forget their first disappointment in love. They married and were happy. You saw it happening every day.

"A penny for your thoughts, Simple Sis!" burst out the irrepressible Mabel from behind her, and Sally jumped. "What are you doing—still living in Dream Street?"

She was standing between the curtains in the doorway and as Sally turned around from the window, she began to beckon to her with a crooked finger. "I want to show you something," she mouthed, making no sound with her lips, and Sally followed her out to her bedroom.

"Take a look at this!" she cried when she had locked the door and pulled a large pasteboard box from under the bed. "But don't say a word about it. I haven't told Beau I bought it, and he'll raise the roof when he finds out about it! He doesn't want me to have a thing!"

She pulled a coat of soft golden-brown fur from the tissue paper wrappings in the box. A short coat with a great puffy collar and great fluffy cuffs and a lining of almond-green satin.

"I paid $25 down on it yesterday," she whispered, "and I'm going to pay 10 bucks a week for ten weeks more. Then it'll be mine. Isn't it slick?"

Sally admitted that it was. She looked at the coat with eyes full of longing. She would have loved to own a coat just like it.

"You're a dumb cluck not to get some decent-looking clothes yourself," said Mabel with vigor. "If you were something snappy for once you'd have me and Millie looking like Queen Mary's hat. What do you do with the money you make, anyway? Stow it away in the bank?"

Sally smiled. "No, I don't put it in the bank, Mabel," she replied quietly. "And now that we're on the question of money. Who's going to pay your board? You or Beau? Because I should have had it last night. You two will have to pay it on the dot, Mabel. You both make good money."

Mabel laid the fur coat back into its snowy wrappings. She laughed. "Sure, we make good money, but we don't make enough of it!" she explained. "You'd better go to Beau about the board bill. I've made up my mind to keep what I make for my clothes from now on. I'm tired of looking like something out of a museum."

Sally went straight to Beau, who had a story of his own. "I forgot to go to the cashier for my pay envelope yesterday," he told her. "I pecting friends to have dinner with him at home, and ran down the stairs as if he were very glad to get away.

Mabel looked pleased as Punch as the sound of his departing car died away out in the rainy street. "Well, that's the time that he saw Millie with her horns and hoofs!" she said with great satisfaction. "I'll bet she's cooked her goose forever, as far as he's concerned. No man would want to marry a fish-wife temper like that, if you ask me!"

But Millie did not seem to have "cooked her goose" with John Nye. A week later she went back to work, and for three nights running she had dinner with him down town.

On the last of these nights she came into the bedroom at night, scenting the air with the leathery white gardenias that were pinned on her shoulder.

"My Johnny buys me everything!" she sighed happily. "He has more dollars than Rockefeller has oil cans, and he sure does know how to spend them! Sometimes I think I like him better than I did Davy Davidson, after all!"

Then for three nights she came home early and went to bed. It was on Saturday night that Sally woke up with a feeling that somebody had called her.

She listened. The flat was wrapped in silence and in darkness. Outside the neighborhood seemed to be wrapped in darkness and silence, too. . . . It must be very late, she reasoned.

Then, all at once, a faint ray of light flashed across the wall of the hall outside her door. It faded and was gone.

By this time Sally was on her bare feet and moving slowly towards the open door.

The light flashed out upon the darkness before her once more, and she saw that it came from the room where Beau and Mabel were sleeping. She tiptoed down the hall, making no sound, scarcely breathing.

At the door she paused and cautiously peered into the room. A small flash-light lay on the floor beside the big double bed, and by its light Beau knelt, packing a suitcase! Mabel, with her small, three-cornered mouth open, was snoring peacefully, in the bed above him.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

At high noon John Nye's great purring car turned in at the driveway, and he came up the stairs, acting as if he were carrying Millie's light figure in his arms.

"You great big prize-fighter, you!" she cried breathlessly, when he set her down upon the davenport before the fire. Her blue eyes were wide and bright with seeming admiration.

Then she turned them upon Beau and Mabel. "How nice to see you here!" she said in her very sweetest, softest way. She was always on her best behavior when John Nye, or any other man, was around.

"I think maybe you'd better help me to my room," she remarked, looking back at him. "I'm pretty tired after the ride, and I'd better lie down and rest for a while."

It was then that little Mabel spoke up. "You know, Beau and I are in your old room. Millie's living here," she said quickly. And she blushed a bit, guiltily, for she knew that Millie did not know it. "You're in your old room with Sally again, darling."

The darling did not look much like a darling then. She went white to the lips, and her eyes seemed to grow fairly black with anger.

"You've taken my room, you little sneak!" she blazed out at her sister-in-law. "You've moved my things back into Sally's room without even telling me about it! Well, you're a fine lot! All of you!" Her glaring eyes went from her mother to Sally and on to Beau.

She stamped her foot and opened her lips to tell them what she thought of them. And then, all at once, she stopped and glanced at John Nye, as if she had just remembered that he was there.

In the twinkling of an eye she had changed completely. All the fury went out of her face, and she sank weakly against the pillows of the couch.

"It's all right, I suppose," she said, closing her eyes. "After all, it doesn't make much difference to me where I sleep. Johnny's office is the only place that really is home to me, anyway."

She smiled up at him adorably and begged him to stay to have dinner with them.

But there was no keeping John Nye that day. He said he was ex-
